The AERIE staff sent a questionnaire to every student in the fall. The questions included the following:

What is the most fun you have had in a class in high school?

What is the best thing that has happened to you while in high school?

What is your favorite memory of school?(from kindergarten to the present)

What would you like to be remembered for having said during your lifetime?

What is the funniest thing that has happened while you were in class at GHS?

Assembled here are all of the responses we received...

Stacey,

Well, your Senior Yr. was great! I'm really glad that we became such good friends. Off to college you go, but I hope to stay such good friends. I'll always remember the good times we've had together, Riding around town, SPJST Hall, Stock Tank, ³ best of all, the switch back to COUNTRY MUSIC. Somewhere in our hearts there will always be a place for those "leander boys", but that's all part of the fun we've had together. Living so close together, going to ³ from school together, working together, ³ going out almost every weekend together, it's a wonder we didn't argue more than we did! But I'm glad we didn't. I'm sorry to say good-bye to our Hi-School yrs. together, but lets say Hi to an everlasting friendship! Good Luck at College ³ keep in touch, I'll always be here when ya need a friend! Always remember, no one's ever better than us ³ we can do anything we set our minds to!

It's Enough For All of Us

Smaller than everyone else. At least in our district we were smaller than everyone else.

But we did have more spirit. Twice during the fall we were awarded Team of the Week honors, once by Channel 7 and once by Channel 24.

We also had more heart. The varsity football team ended its season with six wins and only four losses, the best record since joining the ranks of 5A schools.

Despite whatever we might have lacked in size, we more than made up for in pride.

Even if the local weekend hot spots consisted of 7-Eleven and Sonic...

Even if seeing our favorite music groups meant driving 30 miles into Austin...

And...

Even if we did not have the most money...
It's Enough for All of Us.

WALKING INTO 1990

Someone once said that each time you walk out of a room, you walk into another. Leaving the 80's to the history books, we walked right out of the decade and entered the dreams of the 90's.

But we left more than just the history of the 80's behind us. We left our history behind as well. We put 10 years of experience, of fun, of hurt, of love, and of growth under our belts. As the world changed, so did we.

And we had more than just the 90's to dream about. The next 10 years hold marriage, children, college, careers, and untold numbers of hopes. As we change, the world will change with us.

Here's hoping that the year 1990 will have Enough for All of Us.

Contrary to popular belief, school life did not always revolve around research papers and pop quizzes. Just about everything except classwork went into making up that part of school known as student life.

In the annual Powder Puff classic the junior girls broke a long-standing tradition by beating the senior girls. Students participated in Halloween festivities by wearing costumes to school for the first time in recent history. The Power of Positive Students program instigated changes throughout the year, including an assembly where Batman appeared as a special guest.

Trends Consume $

Food ranks #1

Every nickel, dime, quarter and dollar bill counted when it came to most teenagers' expense accounts. Life for a teenager often revolved around the acquisitions, pursuit and spending of the pieces of paper and metal commonly known as money.

When students listed a wide variety of items that they purchased, the main item was food. Other items included gas, CD's, tapes, records and entertainment. Girlfriends and boyfriends were a major expense for many students.

"I spend most on my girlfriend," senior Chris Dossett said. "Because that's the only thing I want to spend money on."

Many people believed in the maxim, "The love of money is the root of all evil," and tried to be as generous with their money as possible.

"I spend all my money on everyone else, I give it all away," senior Beth Christensen said.

"I couldn't let all my friends starve at lunch."

The evil of loving money didn't bother some people especially when it came to their allowances. Most students liked the extra spending money that their parents provided.

"My parents give me money when I need it," senior Derek Power said. "It's helpful."

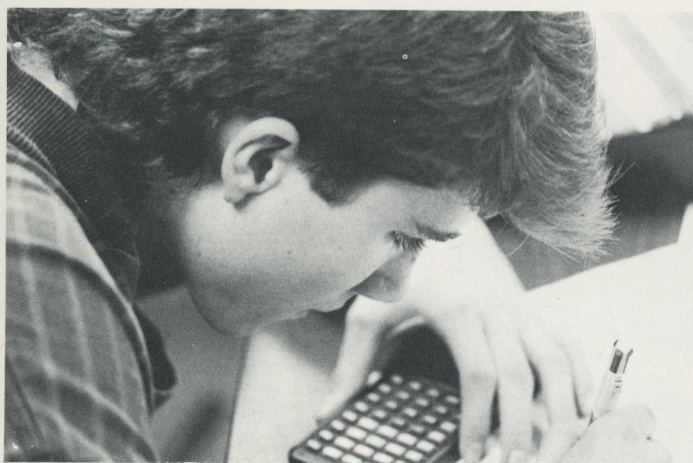

The only complaints heard concerning money were about the prices of the items that teenagers bought. Although many students thought that prices should not be so high, they still bought many of the more expensive items in stores.

"I bought a pair of Jordans for $120," junior Brad Goodman said. "It was kind of expensive, but I wanted the shoes."

Students saved money for reasons that ranged from college funds to shoes and clothes.

"I try to save my money," senior John Varan said, "so I can buy things that cost more than $3."

ROYAL WIN

Beating Westwood caps homecoming festivities

Even before the game began, the team knew it would have to work hard to beat Westwood. Paybacks for the 70-7 loss in 1986 came on the night of October 20 as the Eagles shut out the Warriors, 30-0.

"Beating Westwood was a big thrill for us," varsity player Scott Morris said. "After the 1986 loss we felt we owed them. Everyone played hard and with the support of the crowd, we won."

Halftime activities included the announcement of the Homecoming Queen and her court. The 1988 Homecoming Queen Staci Kasper crowned FCA nominee Julie Crawford as the 1989 Queen. The duchesses in the court were Shannon Miller, Michelle Hodge, Jenny Snyder, and Dea Briggs.

"It's really an honor. I never thought it would happen," Crawford said. "Actually, I thought I might make it into the court, but I didn't think that I would win."

The Student Council played an active part in the Homecoming events by selling mums to the student body and by sponsoring a dance for the students on Saturday, October 21.

"I'm on the Student Council, and they made me work in the concession stand during the football game," freshman Jennifer Jackson said. "But the dance was fun."

On the night before the game, each class decorated its designated hall to encourage school spirit. At the pep rally the Homecoming Queen nominees and escorts were announced at the pep rally. The traditions continued, and the football team rekindled the oldest tradition by beating Westwood.

Shocking Upset

Juniors take all-18-12

When the Georgettes and cheerleaders suddenly have hairy legs and the football team isn't quite as masculine as it used to be, most people tend to stand up and take notice.

What these people noticed was that the Powder Puff game held on December 1 was not any ordinary football game. The game marked the annual event in which the boys and girls switched roles.

"I thought Powder Puff was a lot of fun," senior Kimberly Paggi said. "I think it is a privilege that we get to have Powder Puff. Most schools don't have anything like this."

With a chance to do the unusual, many students watched and participated in a morning pep rally in which the Georgettes danced to the B-52's "Love Shack." The cheerleading squads also performed routines to enliven the spirits of the crowd.

"I thought it was incredibly groovy," senior Beth Christensen said. "It looked like the Georgettes worked really hard."

The crowds enthusiasm carried itself throughout the day and to the evening game held at Eagle Field. Although the rain and cold air tried to dampen the spirit of the game, almost everyone involved enjoyed themselves.

"It was fun," junior Jenny Rister said. "I got to be with all my friends."

Half-time festivities included routines by the twirlers and Georgettes and the crowning of senior Craig Cuff (Georgettes) as the Powder Puff King. Other nominees included seniors Rich Dungan (band), Brent Barton (cheerleaders), and Herb Kunz (football).

Many seniors expressed disappointment in the final score, 18-12 in favor of the juniors, but they still saw the game as a chance for fun.

"I think Powder Puff is one of the most fun times of the year," senior Jennifer Wuest said. "I just wish the seniors would have won."

Building Spirit

Fall Fridays fuel frivolous fun

Clink. Clink. Money dropped into empty water bottles. For two days Mrs. Whiteaker, Mr. Hudspeth, Mr. Hailey, and Mrs. McAferty watched the coins pile higher, while anxiously awaiting the pep rally.

When that fateful day arrived, Mrs. McAferty's water bottle held the most money. As a gym full of spirited students looked on, Mrs. McAferty kissed the PIG.

Not only once did she smooch the squealer, but three times, as shouts of encouragement rose from the crowd.

"I couldn't decide if I was flattered or not," trigonometry teacher Tally McAferty said. "I'd like to think it was a compliment because everyone thinks I'm a good sport, so I'm sticking with that idea."

From the first pep rally, Friday mornings brought out the wild side of some people. Four freshmen were chosen by the cheerleaders to wear blindfolds and diving flippers while trying not to step on the eggs on the gym floor. When the freshmen had their blindfolds securely in place, the cheerleaders removed the eggs, making the four unsuspecting ninth graders believe they might step on an egg at any time.

"It was embarrassing because it was in front of all those people," freshman Arthur Torres said. "I didn't know what I was supposed to do when they asked me to be in the pep rally, but I probably would have done it anyway."

There was no end to what people would do for the sake of school spirit. Teachers participated in a dance contest, Coach Mark Townsend dressed as Pee-Wee Herman, and Mrs. Debbie Segler dressed as "Hans" from Saturday Night Live to "pump up" the football team.

Scenes from each pep rally were recreated at the last pep rally as the song "One Moment in Time" by Whitney Houston played. As a tribute to the graduating class, senior members of the choir sang as the seniors stood behind them.

"The last pep rally was really sad when the football players got on each others shoulders and hooked pinkies," freshman Allison Brown said. "I thought it was sad, and I'm not even a senior."

More Than Dollars Can Buy

Our parents had their first jobs when they were twelve and climbed the ladder of success straight to the top.

At least that was what they liked us to believe. Approximately 70 percent of the student body worked after school and on weekends, so maybe our parents' stories were very similar to the ones we will tell our children.

"I worked twenty-five hours or more a week at Wal-Mart and whenever my dad needs me to work at La Casa Maria for him, I go," senior Cathy Nahay said. "Sometimes it is hard to hold two jobs, but it's really helped me with learning about responsibilities."

Having an after school job meant less time for school, friends, and family, and some did not feel that working was worth the sacrifices.

"I haven't seen my dad since I don't know when. I can only go out about once a week, and I want to be able to go on more Explorers trips, so this weekend is my last weekend to work," junior Lauren Goodley said. "The hours at Wendy's are really flexible, and if I'd asked them for some days off they'd cut back, but what's the use of only working eight hours?"

Then there were those who really enjoyed working. Some part-time employees thought that working was not only a valuable learning experience but also a great deal of fun.

"I work six to seven days a week for a total of about thirty-five hours," senior Ed Keiner said. "I was really tired of either sitting at home or driving around this boring town. I mostly hang out with the people from work, and I have a blast working there."

SPRING SPLASH

Spring supports fever and fun

Candy colored tufts of flowers coat the green, dewy grass of the hillsides. The warm breeze carries the songs of the newly born sparrows, and there is not a cloud visible to spoil the brilliant blue of the sky. What else but a Walt Disney movie could produce such inspiring beauty? Well, spring, of course.

"I know that it's spring when I fall in love," freshman Ryan Guthrie said. "I definitely believe in spring fever. My heart beats fast, and I get all nervous. I like spring."

Although spring did mean gorgeous weather, outstanding landscape, and a great excuse for falling in love, Spring Break represented what many students wanted out of the season.

"My family and I sailed around the British and U.S. Virgin Islands with a rented boat for a week. I had a really, really good time," senior Julie Pastor said. "I got searched at the airport. This woman was frisking me, and I was very embarrassed. Other than that everything went pretty smoothly, but my tan is flaking off."

However, not everyone was able to spend their Spring Break in the Virgin Islands. Many students found themselves confined to the Georgetown area which was covered with grey skies and precipitation.

"Our Spring Break came three weeks before the actual first day of spring," junior Matt Morrow said. "The weather was so bad that we really couldn't go out and do spring things."

FREE FALLING: Senior Tom Bailey holds tight to his swing as Chris Love opts for a more daring position. With the afternoon weather so nice and the Sa Gabriel park so near, the need for recess once again attacked many students as the day went on. photo by Blake Fulenwider

BIG BLONDE BEAUTY: Taking his walk across the stage, Miss Ano N Chad Young, shows off his crowning assets. "My friends and family were surpris see me in a blonde wig," Chad said. all photos by Emmanuel Lozano

ONLY SKIN DEEP

Miss Ano Nuevo winners prove that beauty is only in the eye of the beholder

Picture Greg Brady dancing on a stage in heels, hose, a dress, make-up, and perm in front of hundreds of people. Would the Brady boys have ever done this? Whether they would have or not, 12 boys did just that January 27 at the Spanish club's annual Miss Ano Nuevo pageant.

"It felt good to be able to make people laugh," senior Bryce Arnold said. "I tried to be the biggest slut you ever did see. My mom was shocked by my 'performance,' but I heard her laughing on the video tape."

The pageant included a welcoming performance, talent and evening gown competitions, intermission entertainment by the show choir and a solo by Nicole Black, and finally the crowning of Miss Ano Nuevo.

Bernadette Green (Derek Powers) was announced fourth runner up, third runner up went to Cher (Bryce Arnold,) second to Jaunita (John Loudamy,) and first to Topsy Toddles (Todd Carlson.) The crown went to Obese Kleenice (Chad Young.)

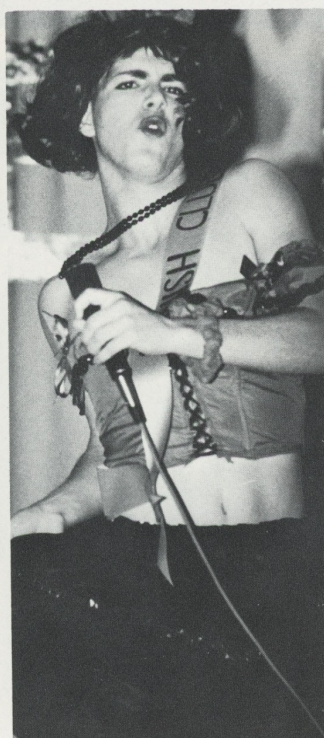

"I was really excited about being nominated. I remember wanting to do it last year," NHS nominee Chad Young said. "I'd definitely do it again, but without the make-up. Make-up was an experience, and let's leave it at that."

The laughter coming from the Williams Elementary School auditorium and $714 made from the proceeds proved the event a success.

"I'll never be able to look at Matt Eidson the same way again," junior Amy McKenna said. "Everytime I look at him all I see is 'Babygirl Eidson' in a mini-skirt singing 'I am Woman.' " by Autumn Sproles DIRTY DANCING: Seniors Tim Boles and Phillip Owen get close while dancing together. Moments later, the water balloons in Phil's shirt burst. Craig Cuff, Joseph Guyton, Todd Carlson, and Phil went out into the audience and picked partners to dance with in their talent routine.

BABY YOU CAN DRIVE MY CAR: Preparing for the ride home, Kevin Harper and Tricia McGuire buckle up in the school parking lot. Just as many couples did, Tricia and Kevin shared the ride to school together.

GETTING SOMEWHERE SLOW

How means more than where

It's not where you go, but how you get there because getting there is half of the fun. Five days out of every week students somehow got to school and back home whether that meant by walking, catching a ride with mom and dad, car pooling with friends, begging for a ride from the older sibling, biking, or enduring the "yellow dog" school busses.

"I've chosen to get rides with my friends, brother, or mom," sophomore Pam Holley said. "I'm not going to ride the bus! I hate the bus. It's hot. It's boring and a waste of time."

Fortunately for students with licenses and cars, searching for a mode of transportation did not pose a problem.

"I'd always rather drive than be a passenger. I get annoyed with the way other people drive," senior Coy Henderson said. "I'm in more control. It lets me drive the way I want to."

However, drivers found that driving to school on their own did have a few minor problems.

"The worst thing about driving to school is having to stop and buy gas," senior Jackie Patterson said. "Especially at eight in the morning in the freezing cold." by Autumn Sproles

READ ALL ABOUT IT: Stretching out on a bench at the University of Texas campus, freshman Angie Craig gets as much reading in as she can before competing at the State Solo and Ensemble Contest. Many students found it difficult to incorporate reading into their daily schedules.

DON'T SIT TOO CLOSE TO THE TV SET: Freshman Jackie Hoover watches a report on flag burning on CNN. The cable channel made news more accessible by running news casts all day long.

LEARNING ALL ABOUT IT

Keeping up with the news is not as easy as it sounds

It's a small, small world... with a lot of people and a lot of things going on. When the crumbling Berlin Wall was just as close as the special sessions of the Texas Legislature to make a new education bill, keeping up with current events could prove to be important as well as quite difficult.

"It's important in any democracy for a large percentage of the population to keep itself informed," U.S. History teacher Latrelle Voss said. "I think Americans rely on the evening TV newscasts and limited newspaper coverage. I once had a professor who claimed that the media could cover two and a half stories well and that the rest would get little coverage. I tend to agree."

Watching local politics became a priority for being informed and involved with current issues. The gubernatorial primaries were held during the school year, producing Clayton Williams as the Republican candidate and Ann Richards for the Democrats.

On the national scene the Iran-Contra hearings continued with further testimonies by Colonel Oliver North and former president, Ronald Reagan. President George Bush headed the hunt for Noriega in Panama, spoke at the UT commencement exercises, supported an amendment to the Constitution to prohibit flag burning, and ordered broccoli to be removed from his meals.

Even with so many events going on around us in our country, foreign affairs captured the media and public's attention.

"The stuff going on in America is boring. I like hearing about Germany," junior Jill Roefer said. "It's much more amusing."

The faces of East European countries changed constantly. The Berlin Wall went down allowing thousands of East Germans to leave the country. Just as surprisingly, East Germany then announced the desire to join with West Germany. Romania ousted its long time dictator replacing him with a once exiled writer, and Lithuania strongly proclaimed its independence from the Soviet Union. All the while, Russia's Gorbachev continued to speak of glasnost and perestroika.

However, the European countries did not have a monopoly on change. After a long history of apartheid in South Africa, the government released Nelson Mandela, the national leader for Black rights, and spoke of tentative negotiations with Blacks.

All students did not become involved with the current issues and events of the time however.

"I read the comics, the horoscopes, and the weather report to see if I should even bother to curl my hair," junior Margaret Loescher said. "During the year I have a lot of homework, and I really don't have time to read and keep up."

"I don't think the U.S. should have gone into Panama. The drug problem is here, and this is where we should be fighting it."

- junior Tyra Taylor

"We have far too many political figures who play upon society's ignorance of what is right and wrong. Too many people live their lives thinking that everyone else is going to do everything for them. It's going to catch up with the United States someday if we don't open our eyes."

- senior David Gauthier

"I think that the biggest thing going on right now is the stuff with Germany. I don't want them to unify. They have a bad reputation for being power hungry and some people still believe Hitler was right."

- sophomore Carrie Minton

"The student protest in China was a good first step for freedom in their country. The students stood up for their rights and were heard. In the long run I believe that the demonstration will be a turning point for China."

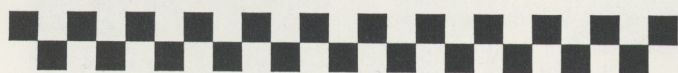

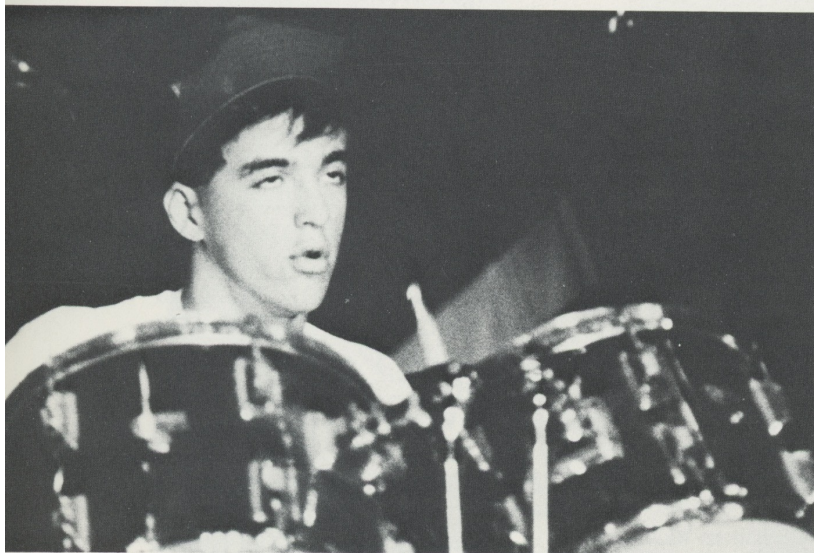

- junior Danny Bielss

SHOWING OFF

Students get moment in the spotlight

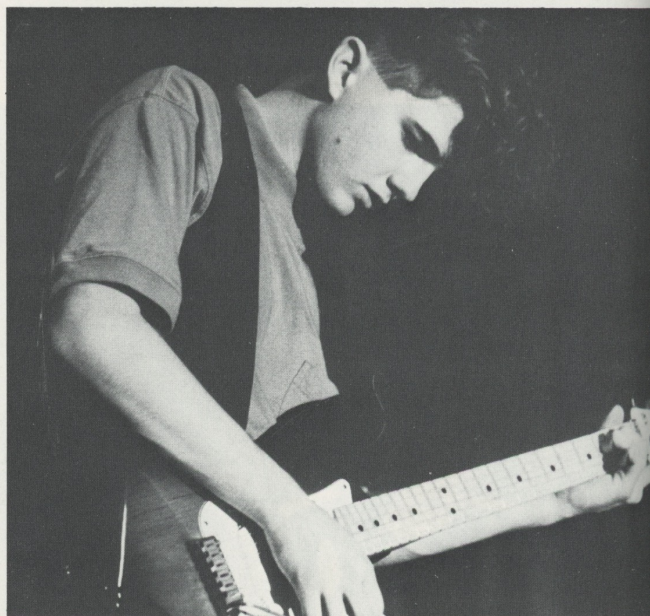

Full of talent and desire but nowhere to show it off. At least that's how many aspiring students felt much of the time. Luckily, the choir sponsored Talent Show produced an outlet for such longings and needs.

"It gives students a chance to show their talents," sophomore Pam Holley said. "Some even develop talents they never knew they had."

The March 30th presentation drew a crowd of about 450 people and furnished much of the finances for the choir's trip to Georgia. However, providing entertainment for the community and the students turned out to be the Talent Show's greatest accomplishment.

"You could tell that Phil Owen really worked hard to create his piece," audience member Shari Hunt said. "He had good stage presence."

AND THE WINNERS ARE...

MARDI GRAS MADNESS

Prom provides entertainment, dancing, time with friends

While the intensity of Mardi Gras may be slightly higher in New Orleans, many seniors, juniors, and underclassmen who attended prom gave New Orleans a run for its money.

The junior class, sponsors of the junior-senior prom, adopted the theme of "Mardi Gras."

In the weeks before the prom, rumors spread that decorations and even prom, itself, might suffer due to a low junior class bank account.

"I was worried that the decorations wouldn't be good because of all the talk about low funds," senior Brooke Marsh said. "I was surprised. They were really good."

Other students spent less time worrying about junior class funds and more time fretting about their own expense accounts. Whether the students or their parents paid for the tuxedos, dresses, dinners, and the other costs, prom could be an expensive occasion.

"It cost my dad a lot of money," senior Roman Milner said.

The fun, thrill, and excitement of the May 5th event, held at Southwestern's Student Union Building, often outweighed the cost for many students.

"I had a whole lot of fun," senior Zachary Gil said. "A lot of money was spent, but I had a lot of fun."

KEEPING CLOSE: Sharing her happiness, Norma Kilpatrick hugs Melanie Bouffard. Friendships with peers and teachers often made high school a little bit more enjoyable for students.

WHAT NOW?: After receiving her diploma, Brenda Breitschopf sends a questioning look toward the stands. Seniors' plans after graduation varied from marriage and college to work and service in the armed forces.

DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL: Graduate Stacey Sowers embraces her father after the ceremony. Making the break from family and friends proved to be one of the most difficult aspects of graduating for many seniors.

CHANGING TIMES

Seniors save graduation tradition

Looking toward the morning sun, 287 graduating seniors took their diplomas from Eagle Field on Saturday, June 2. Although the seniors won the right to a traditional graduation ceremony on Eagle Field, they found a few changes such as stiff penalties for troublemaking and a 10 A.M. commencement.

"Graduation shouldn't be in the morning because it doesn't give people enough time to get ready. Family has to come down the night before instead of coming during the day," Charles Schwegmann said. "It gives us time afterwards, though."

Regardless of the changes made in the exercises, the mood and feelings of happiness, anticipation, and sadness were still expressed by students, parents, faculty, and in the salutatory and valedictory addresses given by Brenda Kleen and Matt Eidson, respectively.

"I hope graduation is the beginning of a long, successful life for everyone," valedictorian Matt Eidson said.

Seniors kept the traditional desire to get out of high school despite their sadness over leaving friends.

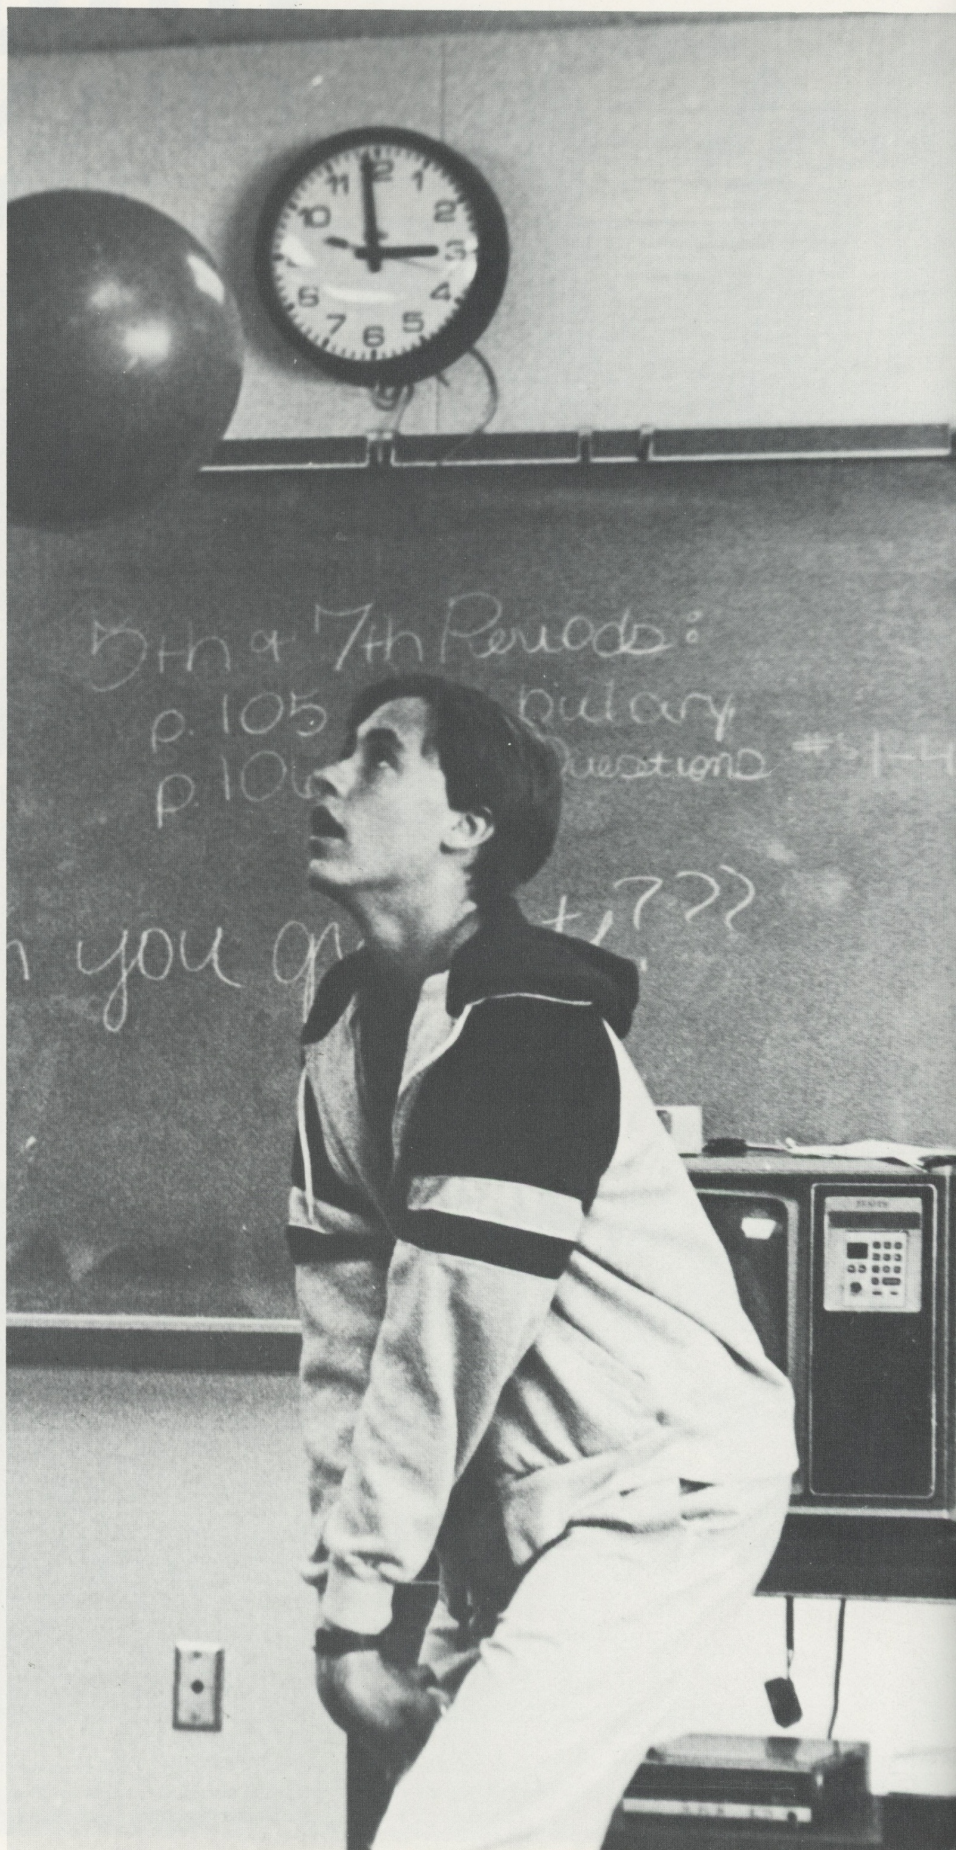

"The best part about my senior year was taking the last semester exam and realizing that it was all finally over," graduate Becky Hayes said. "I've been going to school 14 years, and it's good to be out."

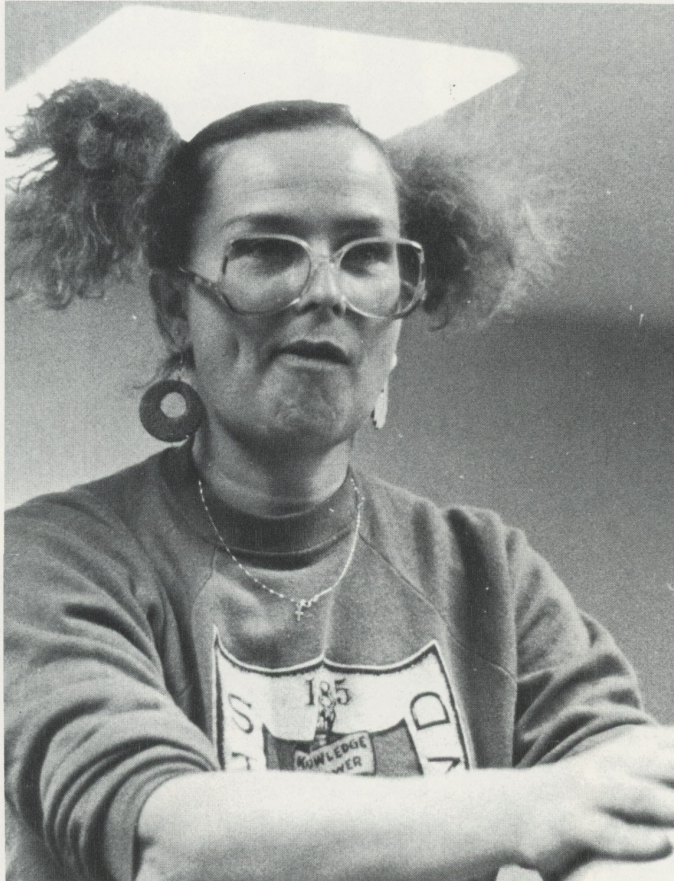

LOOK MA, NO HAT!: Celebrating their official graduation, seniors perform the traditional toss of the cap. In an effort to ensure safer partying, Parents for Pride sponsored a chemical-free party for the graduates with the theme of "Casino Cruise."

Academics

Through the combined efforts of the Power of Positive Students, old rules, and new policies, the year brought forth many changes throughout the realm of Academia.

The POPS program worked to change the negative attitudes of some students towards their academic endeavors and to bring about a greater interest in learning.

Changes in both school policy and state law brought into effect new tardy and absence policies.

Throughout the year students, teachers, and ideas worked to challenge each other in their academic pursuits.

POPS PERSUADES PUPILS

The newly formed POPS (Power of Positive Students) program, headed by science teacher Mrs. Betty Whiteaker, encouraged students to take an active part in school activities and to maintain a positive attitude towards all aspects in life.

"It's a very good asset to our school," junior Stacey Chilton said. "I think everyone needs a positive attitude to succeed in life."

The POPS program sponsored a dance, a party in the park, and other activities for the enjoyment of the students.

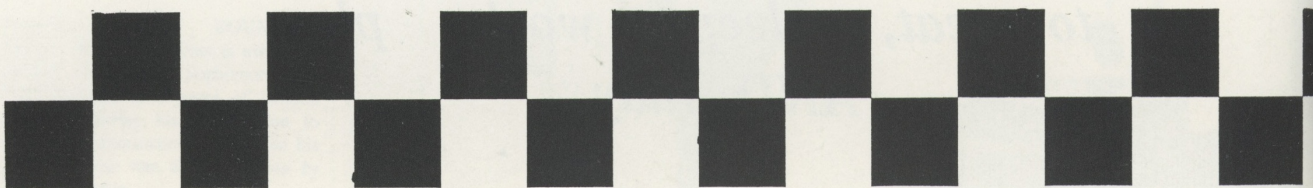

"I think students should be aware that they control the attitude of the school," Betty Whiteaker said. "They don't have to be victims of other peoples' guidelines."

CODE OF CONDUCT

Altered School Policies Create Mixed Feelings

At the beginning of the year, students saw changes in school policies and state laws. A new tardy policy with a "warning" bell and an 80 day law were enforced by school officials to help keep students in school and on time.

Students had opposing ideas when it came to the new rules.

"I think there is nothing wrong with the law that makes you come to school 80 days of the semester," junior Mike Cardwell said. "If you're absent too much then you can easily get it excused by a committee if you keep good records."

Other students disagreed with the law's logic.

"It punishes the people who have unexcused absences," senior Melanie Bryce said, "as well as the people who have a good reason."

However, most of the students liked the altered tardy policy for different reasons.

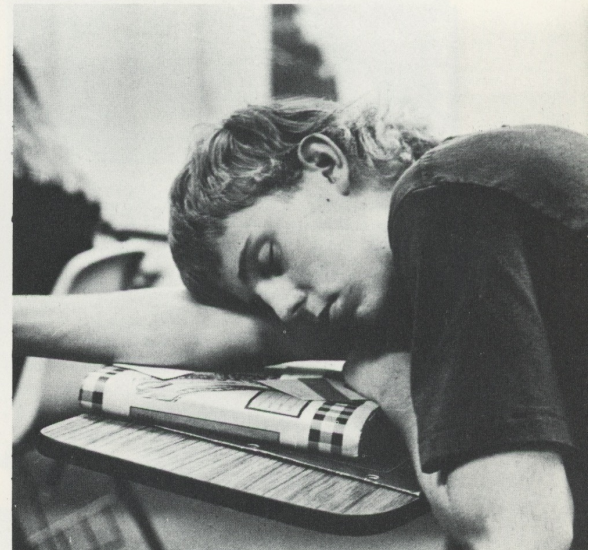

"I think it's easier to get away with more tardies," junior Chi Reynolds said. "Some of my teachers don't even keep up with them."

The warning bell, often referred to as the "starting gate" by Mr. Foster, was appreciated by students.

"I really like the new warning bell," junior Catherine Parnell said. "This way you're more likely to get to class on time."

PUBLICATIONS PUBLISH MEMORIES

Newspaper, Yearbook preserve events for future reference

Every class had deadlines. Homework, projects, and tests all had to be completed by certain dates, but a few classes had deadlines of a different kind. Talon, the school newspaper, Wings, the literary magazine, and Aerie, the yearbook, all had deadlines to meet, and the computers helped.

"Deadlines are very strenuous, but they are very exhilarating and get the adrenaline flowing, and everyone rushes here and there," Talon editor Bill Taylor said. "I yell at someone to do something, and they yell back that they did it. It is always a relief and sense of satisfaction when we finish the paper and send it to the printer."

The average person overlooks the hard work and dedication necessary to put out the Talon, Wings, and Aerie for publication.

"Putting together the Literary Magazine is much harder than it seems," Wings staff member Carley Pilgrim said. "We spend everyday on computers not to mention always trying to write something new, but ... it's fun!"

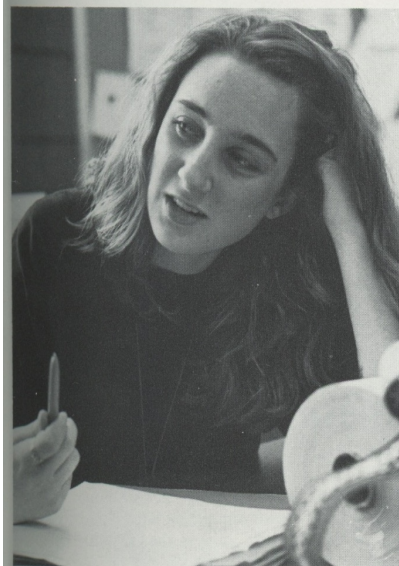

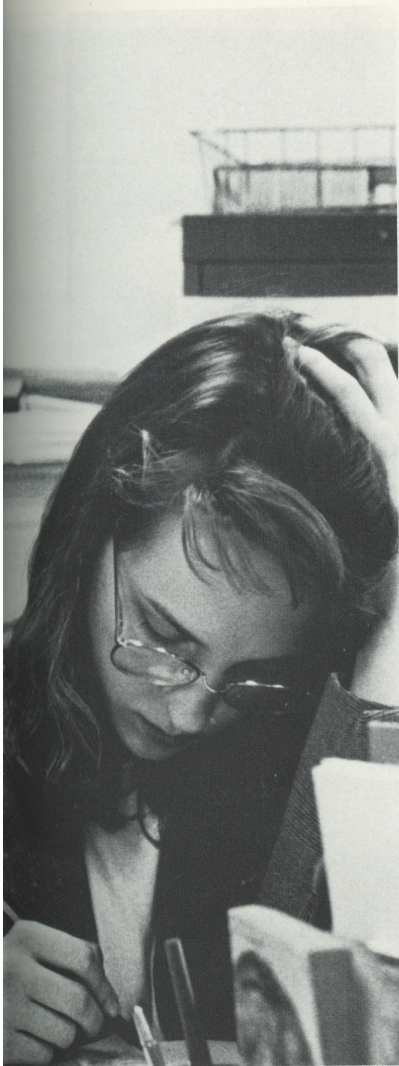

Students took publications classes to help them with their futures, and to gain experience writing publications, working with computers, designing graphics, and producing layouts.

"I am on yearbook staff because it will help me get along with people," Aerie staff member Julie Pastor said. "And it will also teach me to work under deadline pressure, because I plan on being in the advertising business." by Vicki Myers

ACTORS AND SINGERS RECORD HITS

Production Numbers Showcase Talents

In the loft above, choir members practiced their musical numbers; meanwhile, in the Little Theatre below, actors, crew, and various drama students rehearsed for an upcoming production. This scene was not uncommon.

Productions from both drama and choir entertained audiences from the Little Theatre to the Eagle Stadium. The show choir entertained the community during the Power of Positive People rally.

The Concert Choir, the Electric Blue Showgirls, and Jazz n' Pizazz all performed for the choir's Mexican Dinner Fall Concert, Christmas Concert and the Spring Spaghetti Supper.

"I'm nervous before a concert. It's really hard to sing because your face gets tense," junior Chi Reynolds said.

The Drama Department performed in three productions. Each brought its share of faithful audiences.

Don't Drink the Water, by Woody Allen, brought near sell-outs each night. The plot revolved around three American tourists in a militaristic communist country.

"Getting the role [as Walter Hollander] was as much of a surprise to me as to anyone else," sophomore Chris McMinn said. "I went in expecting a job as a stagehand."

Chamber Music and Table Settings, both one-acts, showed in the spring. Chamber Music placed first in district competition and advanced to regionals.

"The character work involved in Don't Drink the Water helped train me for more difficult character work as the Woman with the Gavel in Chamber Music," junior Erica Sutton said.

LATE TO BED, EARLY TO RISE

Extra hours equal extracurricular

Not satisfied with the simple hours of 8:45 a.m. to 3:46 p.m., students added to their scholastic day by request or through volunteering for those classes that required extra time.

"I don't think staying after school is fun," band member Wendy Martin said. "If I went home directly after school, I'd get bored."

Students who spent more time than needed at school felt the effects later.

"I stay after school until 6:00 p.m.," basketball player Jodee Wilson said. "So, I lose a lot of sleep during the week."

Each activity had different reasons for staying after, such as deadlines or practicing.

"We have so many things to do to get ready," Georgette Jennifer Crew said. "We really don't start practicing until after school."

Preparing to spend additional time on school related activities caused students to remain after the last bell.

"Because tournaments are so close together we must stay after school," speech student Carley Pilgrim said. "Also, we search for junk to read at tournaments."

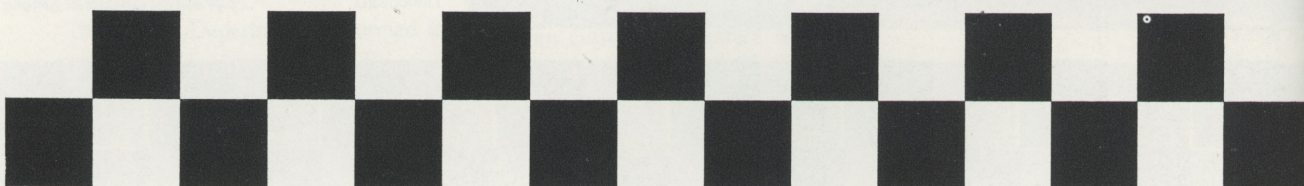

Transportation did not pose a problem for students with understanding parents.

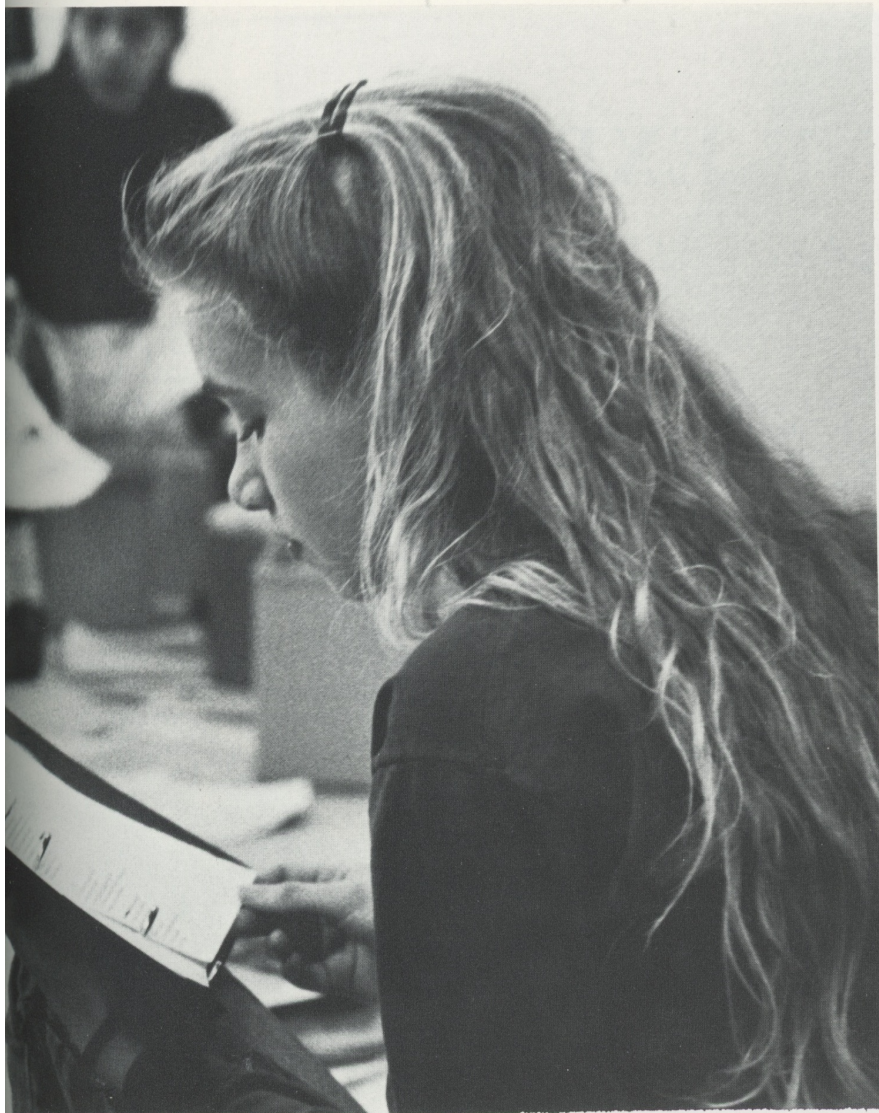

"I usually don't have a problem with transportation," swimmer Brian Hunt said. "I have my mom get up at 6:55 a.m. to take me to the pool."

Using more time on after school activities took away from other priorities.

"It takes away from study time," band member Kevin Harper said. "I'm not really sure it affects my grades." by Ginger Billy

EXPLOSIVE EXPERIMENTS

Hands-on experience causes electricity and black clouds

Catch that rat!

Be careful with that acid!

Put on your apron and goggles!

These are a few of the warnings students heard their teachers say. Science students who ignored these warnings given by their teachers found out how dangerous and exciting labs could be.

"One time in class, I was doing this lab where I was supposed to make this electrical current. I didn't do it exactly the way the teacher told me to and blew up all the circuits in the room," sophomore Jennifer Heine said. "It was great. All the students were laughing as smoke filled the room."

Some students found these little incidents amusing, but others did not find them quite so funny.

"There was one time in class when this girl next to me overheated her chemicals. They caught on fire and caused a huge cloud of black smoke," junior Niki Robinson said. "I'm just glad I got out of the way before she set me on fire, too!"

Other students tried to do their labs right, but it did not turn out the way the teacher planned it.

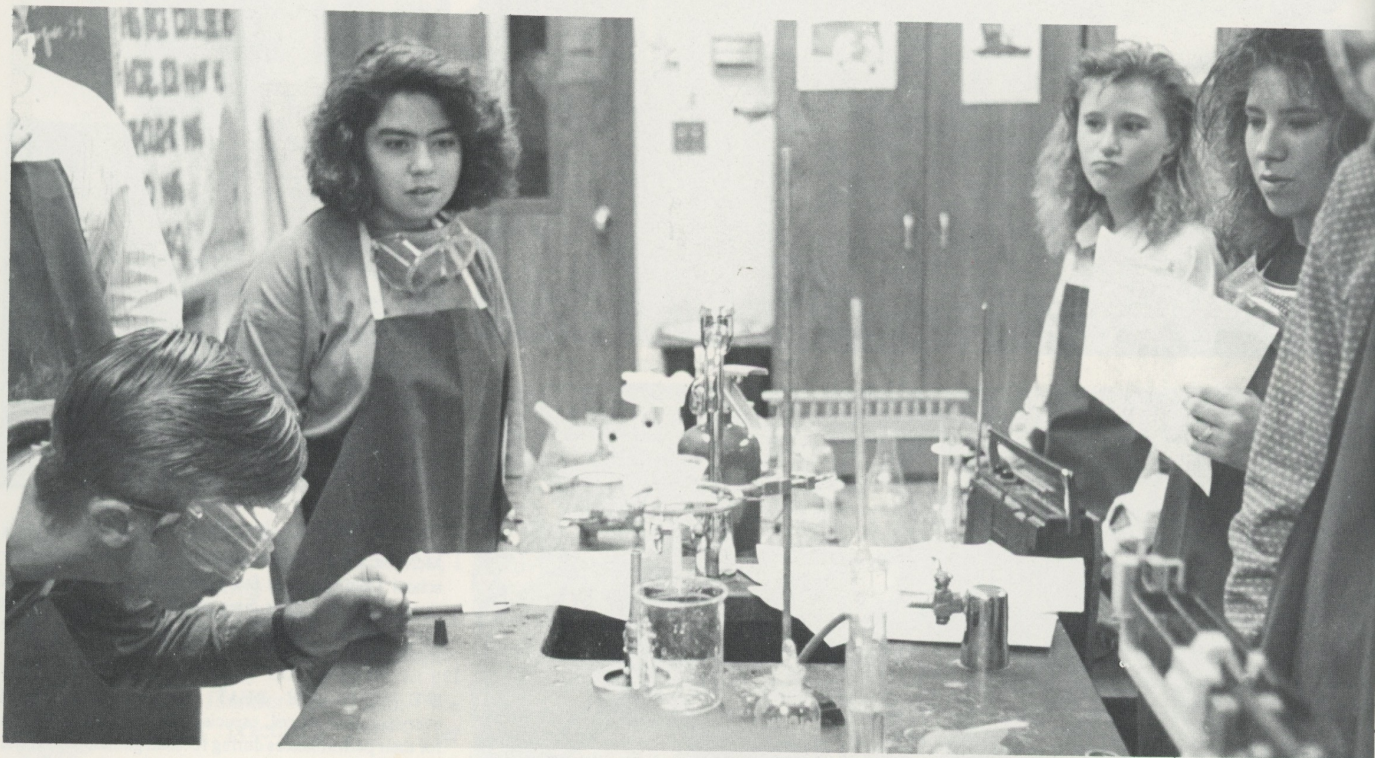

"I remember one time in lab when my partner and I were supposed to be making candy canes. We got a little carried away and ours didn't come out quite right," senior Herb Kunz said. "It looked so perverted that our teacher threw it away."

Not all labs were as exciting, but many agreed labs were a great change from everyday science work.

"Labs are the most interesting part of any science class. It gives you a chance to get hands-on experience and create a different atmosphere. It really breaks the monotony of the strenuous routine of the normal science class," junior Amy Coufal said. "Even though sometimes we get a bit carried away."

Through rain and shine, morning and night, students participated in sports activities all year round. From early morning swimming to late night football and all day baseball, participants and spectators found a variety of sights and sounds. With this great abundance of sporting events, athletes could select the sport best suited to their talents. While rewards may have run short and being a team member may have tried an individual's patience, contestants relished in the camaraderie that teams provided and celebrated in the thrill of victory. By Jeff Walters and Beth Shortlidge

While the sweat poured down their faces and the adrenaline pumped through their veins, the runners pursued their goals over two and three mile courses. The cross country runners chased and achieved goals that they had never reached before.

For the first time in recent history, both the boys' and girls' varsity cross country teams qualified for the regional meet. After regionals, the boys' cross country team made history again when it became the first sports team to make it to state in 5A.

"Going as far as we did was incredible," runner Derek Power said. "I knew we had an outside shot, but the odds were tremendously against us."

The varsity boys came out of the season with a first place finish at district, third in the region, and 12th in state. The varsity girls finished second in district and eighth in the region.

Subvarsity teams followed in stride with the varsity teams. The JV girls and boys took first and second place, respectively.

The freshmen boys did not place as a team because they were two people short of the minimum number required by UIL for a team.

The freshmen girls' team consisted of six 7th graders and one freshman. It placed first with a perfect score of 15.

Lady Eagles Block Out Their Opponents

Who could hold up the longest? A bunch of clatter and voices of "mine," "take it," "be ready" were heard. "Be ready!"

Yes, that was exactly what happened at the Austin Volleyball Tournament. The girls were ready, ready to demonstrate their skills. They received first place out of thirty-two teams.

"I knew they had the potential to win," varsity Coach Tarryl Hyder said. "When they play like I know they can, there's no doubt in my mind that they will win."

The players shared some of the same thoughts.

"It was so awesome!" junior Kami White said. "The whole team was ecstatic. A little town like Georgetown went to Burger Center in Austin and won, even though no one expected us to!"

That was the start of a tough 5A season.

The first five district games proved the team to be triumphant, then Round Rock came along...

"The Dragons have always been hard competition," senior Dusti Dossett said. "And our winning just depends on if we play up to our potential."

Despite the Eagles' loss, they still searched for a chance in district, winning five out of eight successive games. The final result was ten wins versus five losses.

JV, FRESHMEN V-BALL GIVE COACHES "EXCITING YEAR"

New Coach Adds To Progressive Season

For the JV and freshmen volleyball teams, it was a progressive year.

The JV team gave Coach Sue Davidson her best record ever with 23 wins and 4 losses.

"What an exciting year we had," Coach Davidson said. "I really had fun!"

The JV team consisted of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors.

"I loved being a part of the JV team," freshman Laura Hanner said. "Everyone treated me nicely; they took me in and made me feel comfortable."

As for freshmen teams, they also gave their coach a rewarding season. The freshmen A finished 22-7, claiming fourth in district. They won the Hays and Georgetown tournaments and placed second in the Killeen Tournament.

There was plenty of room for adjustment on the A and B teams.

"I felt real good," Eowyn Buchan said. "I went from a 'bench warmer' to a starter on the A team."

The B team tied for first in the district with a 14-4 season.

All in all, the year was full of many accomplishments, which acted as a stepping-stone for everyone.

Team Tennis Takes 3rd In District

With a third place finish in team tennis competition and with six team members winning the right to compete at the regional meet, the varsity tennis team added many trophies to their collection.

"It was really disappointing that we didn't win in team tennis," senior Lezley Maxwell said. "But it was neat that almost half the team went to regionals individually."

Senior Tiffany Hardage and junior Chrissy Supak not only won the title of district champion in doubles, but went on to become quarterfinalists at regionals.

Other regional qualifiers included senior Lezley Maxwell and junior Tracy Voltz in girls' doubles and senior Todd Carlson and junior Jerrod Worsham in boys' doubles. Both pairs finished of doubles took second place. Junior Austin Lowder ended district with a third place in boys' singles.

JV And Freshman Teams Both Score High In District

Both freshman and JV teams started out the year with high rankings. In the Georgetown Spring Invitational, the freshmen won first while JV recorded second place. The junior varsity team took three third places at district. Those with third place trophies included sophomore Jennifer Zrubek and junior Becky Miller in girls' doubles, junior Stew Guymon and sophomore Jeff Goree in boys' doubles, and freshman Spring Janke in girls' singles.

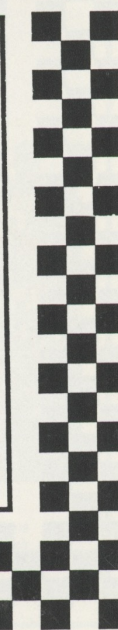

"I get out of school all day for the tournament," junior Stew Guymon said. "But now I have all these tests to make up."

The freshman team came away from district with two doubles teams and two individuals scoring high. Freshmen Betsy Carmichael and Penny Grimm teamed up to take a second place in girls' doubles while freshmen Cassie Ratley and Tifani Edwards finished fourth. Freshman Liz Bennett placed fourth in girls' singles. In boys' singles, freshman Robbie Kemble finished third.

"Temple beat us in the final match for first place," freshman Penny Grimm said. "Betsy and I make a good team. We played together all year." By Jeff Walters and Beth Shortlidge

GRIDIRON GLORY

"Team Effort" Produces First 5A Winning Season

The varsity football Eagles made all the right moves in their fourth year of 5A district play, stretching to the limits unattainable for most district competitors. Georgetown surprised state ranked teams, such as Waco and Killeen Ellison, by showing them that the Eagles were no longer just another Sunday stroll.

"We finally showed people that we are not just competing anymore, but that we are now winning," senior Clint Hicks said. "Georgetown is no longer just another team to roll over anymore. I feel that this year is a stepping stone."

The varsity kicked off the season with a win under its belt, but later suffered a loss to non-district Kingwood. After long days of hard practice and patience, the footballers showed no mercy, recording three consecutive wins over old rivals.

"We were all fired up and ready to knock some heads," senior Brad Gregory said. "We knew this year was going to be no picnic, but yet we knew that this year would be the one."

Then came Temple, a match the team wanted only to be forgotten. The loss to Temple knocked the Eagles off course temporarily. Too bad for Westwood it was not longer, because the boys from GHS answered the loss with a Homecoming victory. The celebration came to an end after losing the next two matches against both Killeen teams.

"I was really upset with myself," senior lineman Lance Adams said. "It just didn't seem like we wanted those games bad enough, because we knew deep down inside we could have beaten them."

But as everyone knew, the game, or season, in this case, was not over until the fat lady sang. The footballers dug down deep and pulled out their final victory to wrap up a six and four winning season, the first winning season since entering 5A four years ago.

Although team effort was the key ingredient to capturing third place, high achievers entered the 1,000 yard mark. Junior quarterback, Shane Boff, ended the season with 1,125 passing yards, and junior running back, Andre Hill, rushed for over 1,000 yards.

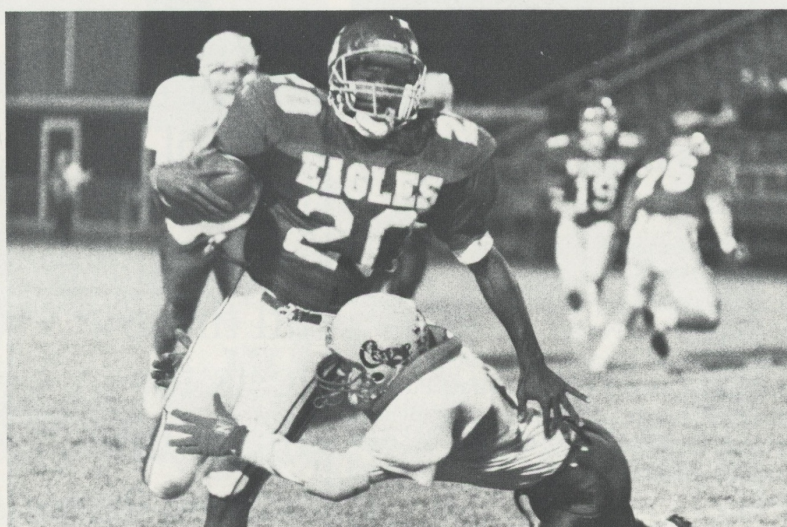

"I feel that this year was a great year for all of us," Hill said. "The team effort shown this year was unbelievable. I know all my credit goes to the linemen. Without them, I could have never done my job."

Also credited with high honors were senior linebacker David Hearne and receiver, tight end Hicks.

"Many people thought this year was going to be a one man team, but it wasn't," Hearne said. "We played more as a team this year than ever before." by Emmanuel Lozano

DOWN, BUT NOT OUT

Combined Team Hunts for Elusive Win

Teams are always having their ups and downs. Unfortunately for the junior varsity, downward was the only way to be found. The team finished the season with a disappointing 1-7-1 record.

"We could have done a lot better," junior Brad Colbert said. "It just seemed like nothing ever clicked."

In hopes of making the football team work, the sophomores were added to the junior varsity. The two teams then combined to form one large junior varsity football squad. After a few games of trial and error, the team still came up empty. Disappointment and frustration loomed among the players.

"The coaches did a heck of a job working with us, but nothing seemed to work," junior Jarret Martinka said. "We never came together as a team. It was frustrating."

Although the team never took a victory as a whole, the original junior varsity managed to win against McCallum. Near the end of the season, much of the squad finally believed that all the hard work and long hours paid off.

"During the season we never did anything worth mentioning," sophomore Bruce Fowler said, "but close to the end we came close to bagging a few."

5A HIGHWAY LEAVES FRESHMEN STRANDED

Teams Face Stiff Competition In Beginning Year

Freshmen found a hard road to travel on a 5A highway. The A team recorded a 4-6 season. The B team had a tough time and did not win any.

"This freshman group of guys had a great deal to offer with their determination and dedication," coach Bruce Katt said.

The trainers were also dedicated in their support of the underdog freshmen teams.

"The players left a good impression by all the hard work and enthusiasm," trainer Stephanie Peak said.

Some fans agreed that the freshmen teams worked hard and maintained a positive attitude throughout the season.

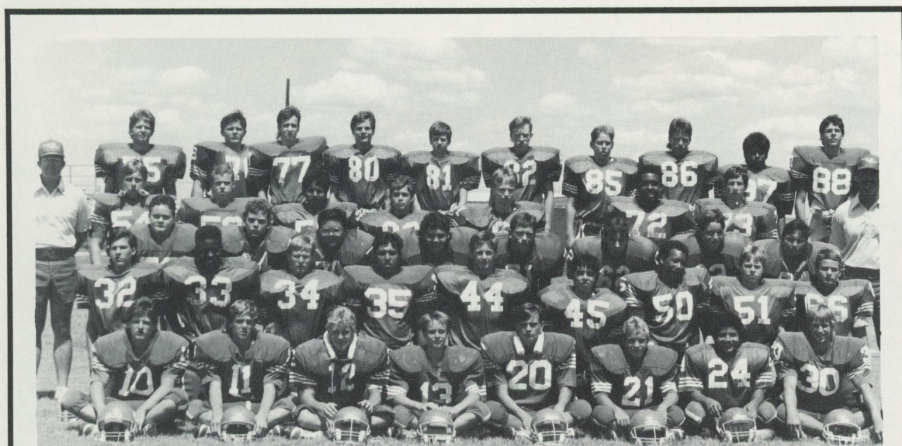

"The players encouraged each other throughout the entire practice," assistant trainer Erika Bailey said. "I found that extremely good."

Although the teams suffered numerous losses, most of the players held an optimistic attitude.

"I definitely think that next year will be totally different," freshman Mike Grimes said. "Next year we will be competing in 4A, and we should be able to hold our ground."

Boys' Varsity Place Second In District Go To Playoffs

As another year of basketball began, fans held high expectations for the boys' varsity team. The Eagles went to the playoffs a year ago and wished to achieve that dream again. The dedicated players, determined coaches, and supportive fans helped make this dream a reality. Spirited students attended the games on a regular basis cheering on the team. Senior Neil Messing organized the crowd of peers by leading cheers and passing out signs.

"I noticed that at the games no one would cheer even though there was a lot of excitement in the crowd," Messing said.

The idea caught on and soon the stands filled with enthusiastic fans holding up signs with a 3 printed on them every time a player sunk a three pointer.

The team's successful season was also attributed to Coach Maurice Varnell.

"We set our goals for the playoffs, and we made that goal," Varnell said. "We had an outstanding year due to the dedication of the guys."

However, it was the players themselves who determined the fate of the team.

"I think beating Westwood was the turning point of the season," junior Lance Hughes said. "If we hadn't won that game, we wouldn't have gone to the playoffs."

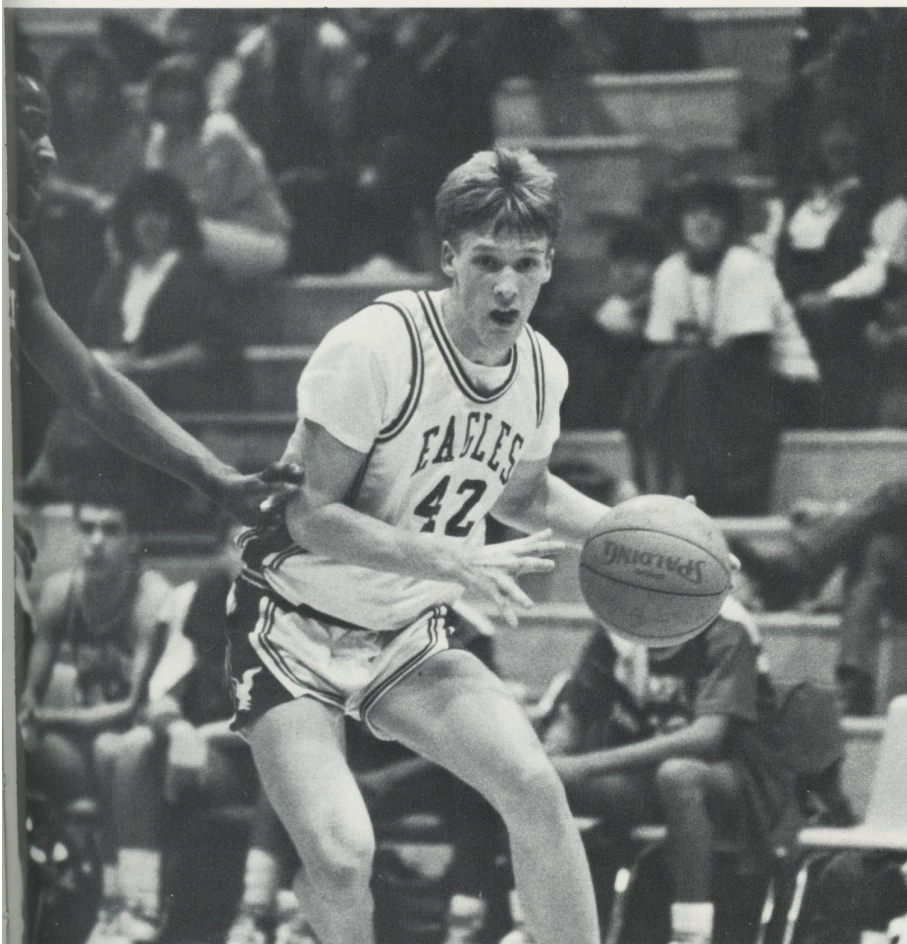

The team finished with a season record of 22-12 and 9-5 in district.

ON THE BALL

Junior Varsity Break Even, Freshmen Struggle

Junior varsity and freshmen teams fought a hard season. With a district record of 7-7, some teammates felt they made quite an accomplishment.

"Our team had a lot of ups and downs during the year," junior Scott Mangum said. "I think we did quite well in the tough district we were in."

Despite the declining win/loss percentage throughout the season, the players thought they still learned a great deal.

"We started out the season pretty good," sophomore Darren Honea said. "Even though we lost many district games, I think that we improved from the beginning of the year."

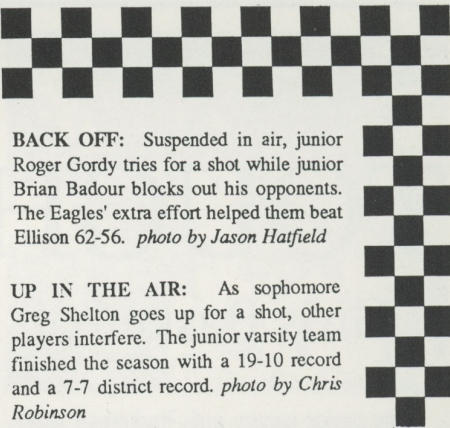

The majority of the B team's wins were acquired at the beginning of the season, before district play even began. The season started out with a 55-35 victory against Pflugerville, but ended with eight consecutive district losses. The A team showed better results, winning 5 out of 14 district games. The mid-season games proved to be the best part of the year. The Eagles beat Copperas Cove and Westwood twice and Killeen Ellison once, making up all their district victories.

"We didn't do that great this year," freshman Blake Kimbro said. "But we gained experience that we will need for the future." By Ted Brinkley and Beth Shortlidge

TOUGH TIMES

Girls Basketball Pulls On Through

The junior varsity girls basketball team brought outstanding results for the season, having a first place tie with Westwood.

"We did really well this year," sophomore Amy Albers said. "It made the team and I feel that we could accomplish anything."

They only lost twice, back to back with Temple and Westwood.

"We weren't playing as a team," junior Jodee Wilson said. "I think if we could go back now, we could beat them."

From mid-season on, they slaughtered their opponents, winning every game.

"We had really gotten everything together," sophomore Tracie Heideman said. "It made us wish that we weren't getting out of Westwood's district."

Other wins included first place at the Austin High Tournament, and second at the Burnet and Bastrop tournaments.

Having a combined over all record of 21-17, the freshmen teams did not do too bad themselves. The scores, showed as one team, really consisted of two, a blue and a white team. Some found themselves moving back and forth on both teams.

"When one team needed help, Coach Davidson would move a wing or a post down," freshman Linda Valdez said. "It would really help out the team."

The "combined" team did not seem to bother most of the girls.

"We were all good friends," freshman Tiffany Hubby said. "We all worked together."

In the end, the Blue team had an 11-3 record and the White team had a 10-14 record. A first place was also awarded to them at the Burnet Tourney, with Kerry Edgar and Kelly Johnbson as M.V.P.'s.

Girls Varsity Place Fourth In District, Score High In Tournaments

Getting together the sleeping bags, pillows, and basketballs, the varsity girls basketball team started off the year with an overnight trip to the San Antonio Northside Tournament. The ladies placed fourth out of 16 teams.

"Not only was it a great tournament, but we also got to see all the Christmas lights on the Riverwalk," said Coach Rhonda Farney. "It was a real neat atmosphere."

The team won their first tournament at Leander.

"It was a very important win for us," said junior Desiree Warren. "It boosted our morale."

The first four district games proved to be wins, followed by four losses to Killeen, Waco, and Round Rock-- three of their toughest competitors.

"We never did win against Killeen and Waco," said junior Catherine Parnell. "But we did beat Round Rock at the first of the season."

This was a season of very close games.

"We barely lost to Cove at the beginning of the season," senior Heather Keeling said. "The score was 53 to 54."

The girls finished fourth in district.

"I wish we could have gone farther in the playoffs," senior Leanne Cole said. "I think we all learned from our mistakes this year."

Three Varsity Players Make All-District

Experiencing a bittersweet season, the varsity golf team started strong in the fall and finished fourth in district.

The team of Jason Brooks, Koy Killen, J.D. Williamson, Robby Ray and Bobby Haby journeyed to Brenham where they encountered a course called "The Falls." The team finished first, and Bobby Haby earned first place individual honors with a round of 78.

A week later, the Eagles tasted victory at the Killen Invitational tournament.

Then, the golfers made it three victories in a row when they won the tournament at Berry Creek.

"The district tournament at Killeen was not so easy for the Eagles," sophomore Koy Killen said. "We were in contention after the day, but we were not able to make up enough ground to advance to regionals."

The team ended the year with a fourth place finish. Jason Brooks, Koy Killen, and Bobby Haby recieved all-district honors. Bobby Haby and Jason Brooks also earned Most Valuable Player awards for their efforts.

The boys JV team finished second out of 18 teams at the Georgetown Boys Tournament at Berry Creek.

"We will have four varsity players returning next year. This team should be an exceptional squad in 4A competition," Coach Paul Parsons said.

The girls team consisted of Amy Hamilton, Brandie Anderson, Tiffany Folta, Kellie Smith, and Khrisslyn Goodman.

"Two juniors, Amy Hamilton and Brandie Anderson should form the nucleus of a much improved team in 1991," Parsons said. "The girls finished sixth in district this year but showed improvement from earlier during the season." by Koy Killen and Jimmy Dyess

PLAYING TAG

Eagles Contend With Top Competitors

As spring approached, many students headed for the beach. The varsity baseball team hit the field. The year initiated with tournaments and endless scrimmages.

"Playing during Spring Break was fun," junior Doug Seaback said. "But we deserve our vacation time just like everyone else."

The team fought hard, but the competitors kept their edge.

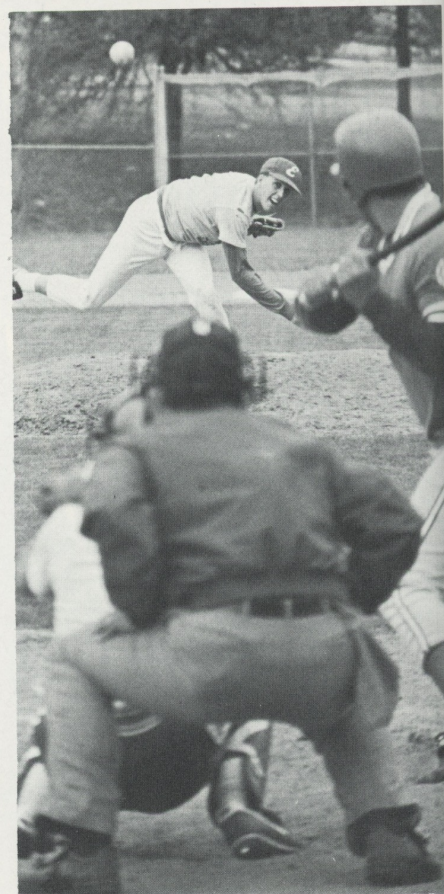

"We played a couple of state-ranked teams," junior Gene Faris said. "I think this was a really good experience for next year's varsity team."

Even though the Eagles had a 3-11 record, most of the games were close and could have gone in either team's favor.

"Out of the seven or eight games I saw, they didn't always win," Principal Tom Foster said. "But they played well."

Not only did the boys contribute a lot of time and effort into making the season run smoothly, but the coaches also took time away from other things to be involved.

"I like working with the boys," retiring Coach Bruce Katt said. "But baseball takes away precious family time." By Ted and Beth

FIELD OF DREAMS

JV COACH PLEASED BY PLAYERS' ATTITUDES

Unity, friendship and stolen bases gave the junior varsity baseball Coach Mark Moore a year to remember.

"It's the best year I've ever had in terms of the players," Coach Mark Moore said. "There was a lot of unity and friendship. It was a good group of kids."

The team had a combined .286 batting average and stole 102 out of 114 bases.

"They were thrown out only 12 times,"

Moore said. "That's quite an accomplishment."

With a little help from fans and managers, the junior varsity players made it through another hard-fought season.

"This is my second year to be a manager for baseball," junior Chi Reynolds said. "It's really fun to keep the guys motivated. We bring them cakes and cookies and decorate their locker room."

SETTING RECORDS SWIMMERS' STYLE

Race Times Improve for Third Place in District

Although they did not place overall at regionals, the swimmers placed third in district and came home proud of their times in the water and happy with the year's accomplishments.

"The 1989-90 year was one of the best ever," girls' Captain Dusti Harris said. "We all worked hard to improve this year, and it paid off because many of us went to district and had good times plus we had many regional qualifiers."

Swimmers broke school records and bettered their times.

The boys 400 freestyle relay raced at district, leading them to a first place and a school record of 3:39.40 breaking the 3:45 record. The relay consisted of Justin Hovatter, Hans Yandle, Chris Shanahan, and Travis Mitchel.

Danny Bielss swam the backstroke, Chris Shanahan the breaststroke, Kyle Yandle the butterfly and Hans Yandle the freestyle, breaking the 200 medley relay record.

Other school records were broken by Mitchel in the 200 individual medley with a 2:29.31, breaking the long standing record of 2:29.83. Besides helping to break the medley relay record, Bielss broke the 100 backstroke record set by John Helms.

James Matthews broke the 5:49 record in the 500 freestyle with a time of 5:34.

Bielss, Harris, Hovatter Matthews, Mitchel, Kara Pennington, Wendy Perkins, Charisma Riley, Shanahan, Matt Stewart, Elysia Wright, Hans Yandle, and Kyle Yandle advanced to Regional competition in Austin.

First year lettermen included Stephanie Kramp, Jackie Patterson, Grace Rowan and Stewart.

The outstanding swimmers, selected by Coach Mark Townsend, included Justin Hovatter and Wendy Perkins.

"The team as a whole was a success. We finally broke records that had been too long standing," Bielss said.

MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON EVER

Lifters power way to new school records

Members of Eagle Powerlifting teams continued what has become a winning tradition.

"We had some newcomers come through for us this year and our veterans picked up where they left off last year to make this season the best yet," Coach Jim Ward said.

One girl lifter advanced to Nationals and four traveled to state competition, where the team placed fifth.

Five members of the boys' team qualified for their state meet and 15 advanced to regionals, the most Eagle powerlifters ever to attend both meets.

"I think the team did well this season," junior Brad Colbert said.

The boys' team finished no less than fourth in all meets. There were two second place finishes at Copperas Cove and Georgetown, with a third place finish at Regionals.

Freshman Cassie Ratley advanced to Nationals in Dallas, placing second there, after qualifying at state with a third place finish. Also attending state, junior Stacey Chilton, placing second, declined the offer to go to Nationals. Sophomore Tisha Comer and junior Tammy Paris also competed. All the girls competed in their own weight classes.

Boys qualifying for state were junior Jason Herrera in the 114 pound weight class, junior Jarret Martinka in the 132 pound class, senior Nick Johnson in the 148 pound class, senior Jesse Resendez in the 181 pound class, and sophomore Monroe Meador in the 220 pound class. Johnson and Meador both placed 12th, where as Martinka finished 17th.

"I felt privileged to be there and compete against the best lifters in the state," Meador said.

Team spirit and individual goals dominated the boys' track team. These attributes enabled three athletes to go to regionals.

Junior Rick Harney placed second in the 800 meters. Senior Chris Swinbank became an alternate to the regional meet after placing third in the mile. Sophomore Monroe Meador placed second in the discus which made him eligible for regionals. by Brad Gregory

RISE AND SHINE

Lady Eagles
Don't "Just Do It"
They Do It Better

Rolling out of bed in the early morning, girl track members tried to recover from not quite meeting their "ten o'clock Friday night curfews." The hair got thrown into a ponytail, and sweatsuits became the uniform for the day. The luggage included sunglasses, headphones, and plenty of food, which the early morning field eventers put away until noon.

"I loved having field events in the morning," junior Kami White said. "It was the only thing I did so I had the rest of the day to have fun."

Midway through field events, the running began, starting with the two-mile run.

"We usually had to run during the hottest part of the day," junior Amy McKenna said. "It was excruciatingly painful."

In most of the races, the Eagles strove to qualify for the finals.

"This is when the real competition begins," junior Constance Harry said. "They're the 'cream of the crop' runners."

After the running of the finals, the relays got underway.

"This year's mile relay team is the best we've had," Coach Sherry Rhoads said. "At least since the four years that I've been here."

The freshmen placed second in district, JV captured first, and varsity took fourth. Constance Harry, Staci Rychlik, Leanne Cole, Desiree Warren, Becky MacNabb, Jennifer Fox, Stephanie Brieger, Kandi Kitchens, and Kim Stry went to Texas Relays, but only MacNabb, Cole, and Warren made it to regionals.

"I surprised myself," junior Becky MacNabb said. "The girls were really intimidating because I was the smallest one there." By Beth Shortlidge

SOCCER SOARS

Varsity Boys Place 2nd

Comparing the boys varsity soccer team's season to a Mack truck, assistant coach TP Wingo complimented the team.

"We started like a Mack truck, slow to get started, but we finished strong," Wingo said. Even with a slow start the varsity boys ended up second in the district, and were the first team in the history of our soccer program to make the play-offs.

This year the Varsity boys defeated Westwood High for the first time ever.

"Beating Westwood was an accomplishment that gave the team the confidence to play to their full potential," Coach Larry Connelly said.

The varsity boys sent six players to the district teams, Chad Mayes, Fransico C., Frank Litterest, Gabe Jones, Ryan Smith, and Matt Morrow.

Regional coaches selected senior Ryan Smith for the state All Star tournament.

"The field was covered with a great deal of talent this year," Connelly said.

The JV team was divided into two teams. The JV A team beat competitors such as Bryan and Round Rock, but lost to Westwood.

"We've turned the corner, and the future looks so bright, I've gotta wear my shades," Coach Larry Connelly said. by Kim Stohr

LADY SOCCER STAYS IN THE GAME

Varsity Scores 4th In District

With a 12-6 record the varsity girls soccer team finished fourth in the district.

"All the senior leadership we had, helped a great deal on the field," sophomore Corie Hammers said.

Beating Westwood highlighted the season.

"After this win the fans poured in," sophomore Marcy Trostle said.

Five sophomores and one freshman were accounted for half of the starting lineup.

"The strong underclassmen helped a great deal on varsity this year," varsity coach Dave Winter said.

The varsity girls sent six players to the district teams; Corie Hammers, Hanna Hurst, Jana Fuller, Jennifer Wuest, Jennifer Fox, and Maura Neary.

The junior varsity team played opponents consisting of Westwood, Westlake, and Round Rock. Although the junior varsity team didn't win, they gained a great deal of experience.

Seniors Protest for Last Rights

The sweat poured down your face. Thousands of eyes were on you, and all you could hear was that one baby crying... possibly Graduation '90?

Based on the behavior of the class of 1989 during graduation, the school board decided to move the ceremony to the high school gym. The relocation was intended to control outrageous behavior, bad weather, and the poor sound system at Eagle Field.

In response to the decision, the seniors began passing around a petition. The petition stated that anyone who signed agreed to behave at the ceremony. The board then argued that behavior was not the most important issue.

Some students thought the board was being uncooperative about any kind of compromise.

"If they won't address the real issue," senior Pam Hart said. "Why should we act like young adults when we aren't treated as such?"

The seniors, led by senior class president Michelle Hodge, attempted to cover every angle. They agreed to act responsibly, and arranged for a new PA system. Some decided the weather should not affect such a memorable occasion.

"Graduation at Eagle Field is a tradition at GHS. Who cares if we all get wet?" senior Wendy Kiser said. "I just want to feel like I'm graduating from GHS, and anywhere besides the field just wouldn't be Georgetown."

After much response from the seniors, the school board agreed to a compromise. Those who misbehaved would be escorted off the field, and their diplomas mailed to them.

Remember When...

Remember the days of single file lines, naps, and a 30 minute recess? Those were the days when the members of the class of 1990 began their education. Ten years later, as they headed toward the end of high school, they remembered back to the "good ole days" of no responsibility and no commitments.

"I remember Mrs. Hatley from second grade in the cafeteria," senior Roman Milner said. "She would always stand at the end of our table, banging it with a spoon, and yelling at us to 'shut up!'"

As the "kids" grew into young men and women, the attitudes of their teachers changed along with them.

"Teachers start treating you like a young adult when they give you the facts and let you make your own opinions," junior Autumn Sproles said. "They've realized you have finally made the break from junior high level education."

As the year grew closer to graduation, students reminisced about their childhood and looked forward to their upcoming adulthood. By Jennifer Sharpe.

Vocational CO-OPs Work, Now and in the Future

The Vocational Education Program granted CO-OP students opportunities to prepare for their futures. Designed to give students "real world" experience, the program allowed students to gain work experience as well as high school credit.

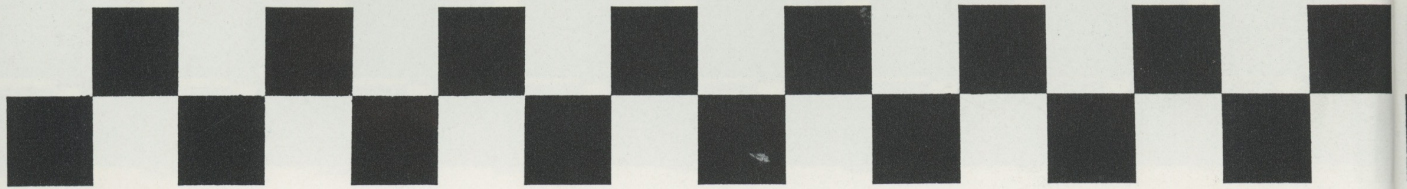

"This program gives me the opportunity to get credit, gain job experience, and make money," senior Kristen Cox said.

Students in the work program were required to take one of the CO-OP classes in their chosen field as well as work 15 hours a week. Four areas of work study were available to students: Coordinated Vocational Academic Education, Industrial Cooperative Training, Marketing Education, and Office Education.

"I work full time at WAG-A-BAG as part of Marketing Education," senior David Merriman said. "My grades have gone down, but I like having money."

WEEKENDS!

"What do you want to do?"
"I don't know, what do you want to do?"

Many weekend conversations began this way.

Georgetown did not provide many "youthful" activities for the students to take part in. Those who stayed in town either "hung out" or went to a friend's house.

"I just usually go to Holly's or we both come to my house and flip on the tube," junior Mike Cardwell said. "There really isn't much else for us to do."

Other students improvised and found a way to get out of the Georgetown atmosphere.

"Sometimes we all go to Austin (6th Street) and hang around there," senior Tom Bailey said. "We usually go to the Lounge, since Amnezia has closed."

No matter what students did or where they went, the weekend provided a different atmosphere than the classroom.

Dressing up for the 20's The Gatsby Day

As spring approached, Gatsby Day students attended the yearly event produced by the junior English classes of Mrs. Mary Alice Brinley, Mrs. Rhonda Farney and Mrs. Holly Barrett. Students involved dressed up in 1920's fashions to recreate the book The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

"I thought it was very interesting," junior Rebekah Mishler said. "The program gave me a better idea of what it was like in the 20's."

Students were glad to get an enjoyable break from the normal school day.

"I liked working at Gatsby Day," junior Chris Donaldson said. "Being a waiter beats sitting in class all day."

The day progressed smoothly which pleased the sponsor, Mrs. Brinley.

"This was absolutely the best Gatsby Day ever," Mrs. Brinley said. "Everything went just as planned. I had complete cooperation from everyone."

The Big Turn

Only 15!

Then the day came.

He had just turned 16 and was ready to drive.

"The best thing about getting a license was that I could now cruise chicks," junior Jeff Clausen said. "Not only that, but the negative proportional mind scale pubertized emotional maturity level rises about 2%."

Not everybody has a wonderful 16th birthday.

"On my 16th birthday I was in a car wreck on the way to school," junior Sid Morgan. "The bad thing was, I wasn't even the driver."

Most people like their birthday, but the 16th is not always a favorite.

"Turning 16 means having more responsibilities," junior Jodee Wilson said. "Not to mention being scared to take my driver's test."

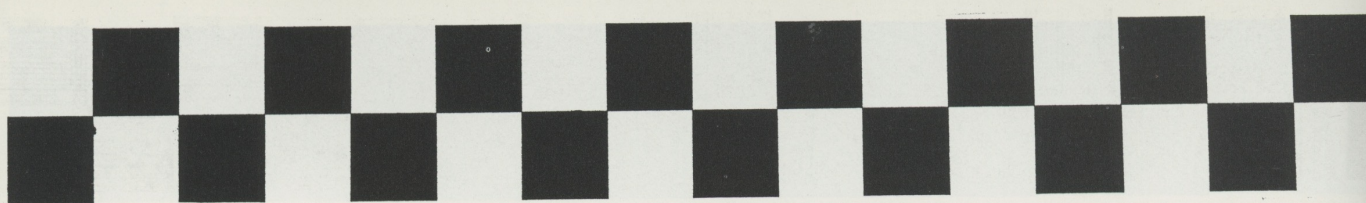

Sometimes a 16th birthday can be like any other day.

"I had to work at a powerlifting meet," junior Stacey Chilton said. "I didn't get anything from anybody either."

Pass the Word

Hey! Can you believe what I heard? Anybody could be the object of a rumor and not find out about it until it was too late.

Numerous rumors started, and the only person who knew why was the one who started it; everyone else just wondered.

"I think someone would start a rumor because they have nothing else to talk about themselves, so they say something about others," sophomore Julie Dozier said.

"They don't have enough pride or respect for especially themselves and others."

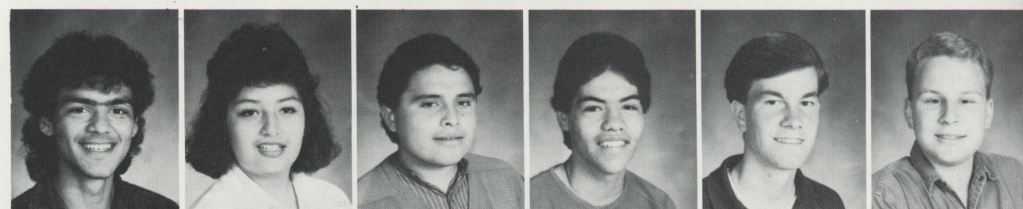

Not just one person could start a rumor, there had to be help.

"I would never help spread a rumor, there is simply too much at risk," junior Brian Badour said. "I just don't think anyone could feel good or happy spreading rumors." by Ginger Billy

for ALL of us...

...AND A little bit MORE

No matter how many different events, topics, and subjects the yearbook staff wrote about, took pictures of, and included in the yearbook, someone would always want something more. They would want that one extra story or another picture. Sometimes it was hard to satisfy everyone.

The yearbook editorial staff created this year's mini-magazine for those who wanted to be entertained or wanted that extra piece of information or wanted just a little bit more.

LIGHTS OUT!

Complete darkness shrouded those rooms that had no windows. Students could not even see their hands in front of their faces, much less their exams.

During the first semester exams, a power failure caused all the lights in the building to go out for almost 20 minutes. Some teachers resorted to extreme measures so that their students could finish the tests.

"I can't believe a teacher would make her students take the test in the hall," senior Seneca Brashear said. "It's so ridiculous for them to build a school without windows."

Administrators decided to let the students and teachers leave early for their lunch break. The time lost due to the power failure was added to the next day's schedule to allow students equal time to finish their tests.

Experiences Create Camaraderie

From acquaintances that pass each other in the hall each day to best friends who have known one another since kindergarten, friendships came in a variety of shapes and sizes.

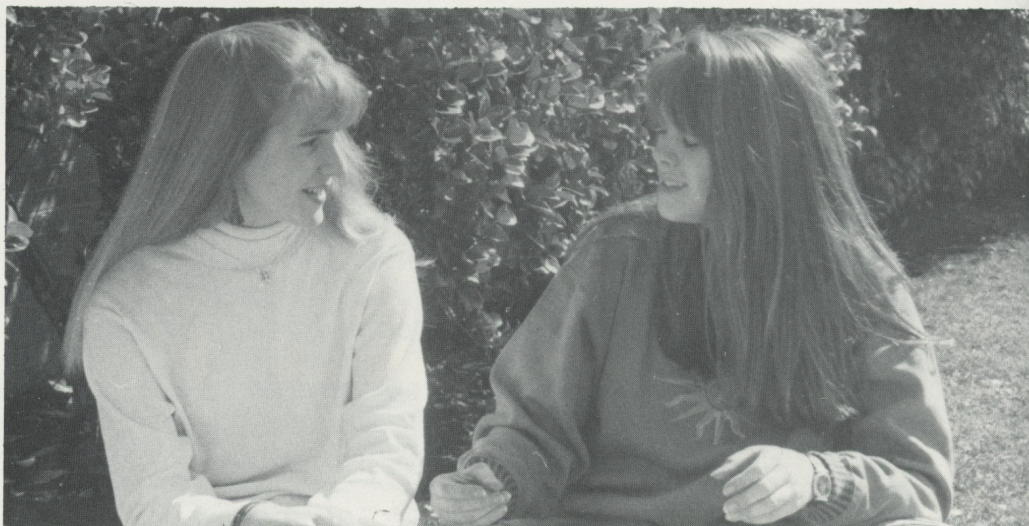

Friends spent time doing anything from talking on the phone to going out on the weekends. Even though friends sometimes caused more problems than they solved, they usually tried to help one another out of any trouble.

"Best friends are more annoying because you're around them more," senior John Varan said, "but they're important when you're upset or in a bad mood."

Through all of the experiences that students participated in, they made both lasting and fleeting friendships.

Students Catch Shopping Bug

Searching store after store for hours and hours in hopes of finding that one perfect shirt or belt or pair of shoes. Those who loved to shop spent the time and money to find that perfect item, but limited resources sometimes meant limited shopping opportunities.

"I go shopping twice a year if I'm lucky," senior Kammie Rodriguez said. "My mother hates to shop, and I don't like to go by myself."

Some students did not plan shopping trips. They just happened.

"I don't call up my friends and say 'Let's go shopping,'" senior Scott

Morris said. "If I'm at the mall and I see something I like, I'll buy it."

Others avoided planning shopping expeditions on purpose.

"I never plan to go shopping," senior Amy Pressler said. "If I do, I can't find what I'm looking for."

MINI-TRUCKS SWEEP THE NATION

Lowered mini-trucks changed from just a hobby into a fad that swept across the country. The fad began in Southern California and caught on just like the fads that came before it.

However, some students did not believe the trucks were just a fad.

"Mini-trucks are going to be here for a long time," customized mini owner Eli Davila said.

Not only the customized trucks gained popularity in Central Texas. Mini-truck clubs became a part of the scene in Austin. The trucks in these clubs all had logos on the back windows. The logo stated what club the owner belonged to and showed that the owner was devoted to "mini-life." The logo represented the ultimate truck enthusiasts.

POPP rally feeds, entertains the masses

Thousands of people present for the Power of Positive People rally at Eagle field had devoured all the available twenty-five cent hot dogs by 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 15.

"I think the skydivers were one of the reasons for many people's attendance," senior Nick Johnson said. "Not many people have seen that before."

In addition to the skydivers, spectators witnessed the inflation and deflation of hot air balloons and saw the arrival in a helicopter of the guest speakers, Superintendent Dr. Jim Gunn, Dr. William Mitchell, founder of the POPS program, and Mayor Tim Kennedy.

Fourth grade students, Mrs. Joy Peak, a third grade teacher at Westside, the high school Stage Band, and the Show Choir provided entertainment.

"I think POPS is a great idea and I am behind it 100 percent," teacher Emily Kuehne said. by Stacey Chambers

Cream of the Crop

Anything would look insignificant on a stage decorated with 400 red, black, and silver balloons, but not on Saturday, February 10. The Mr. and Miss GHS nominees stood out among all those balloons as they sat on stage for Coronation 1990.

Mistress of ceremonies Chi Reynolds and master of ceremonies Brandon Currey introduced each nominee and listed his or her accomplishments and goals.

The nominees for Mr. GHS included Clint Hicks, Matt Eidson, Chad Young, and David Hearne. Nominated for Miss GHS were Michelle Hodge, Valerie Praesel, Kammie Rodriguez, and Heather Keeling.

Teachers selected the nominees by choosing the top four boys and girls they thought best represented the school. Then, students made their choices from the eight nominees.

Chad Young and Michelle Hodge were crowned by Mr. and Miss GHS 1989 Brian Anderson and Wendy Hicks.

"I was surprised," said Mr. GHS Chad Young. "I didn't think I was going to get it."

Ribbons Spark Drug Awareness

During the week before Halloween, red ribbons suddenly appeared on book bags, purses, car antennas, door handles, pinned to shirts and pants, and tied around wrists. The occurrence did not represent some new Halloween tradition or even a fashion from Paris or New York. The red ribbons emerged to kick-off the Texas Red Ribbon Campaign.

The campaign originated when Federal Agent Enrique Camarena was murdered by drug traffickers in 1985. The effort promoted a drug-free lifestyle which in turn reduced the demand for drugs.

"It brought the awareness to the public as well as the school," senior Clint Hicks said. "It was neat that the community backed it up."

The red ribbon became the symbol of a visible commitment for the national and state campaigns. By providing students a chance to wear and display the red ribbons during the Red Ribbon Week, the campaign hoped to raise the awareness about the drug problem in Texas.

Relationships, pop culture, parents, trends, politics, and even the supernatural played a part in high school life.

The Aerie staff gave students in four English classes a chance to reveal their opinions about life, liberty, and the pursuit of a good time. The students answering the survey came from a random selection of one English class from each grade (9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th).

Here are the results...

Choosing the most exciting sports figure alive today, students selected these as the top three: 1. Michael Jordan 2. Mike Tyson 3. Bo Jackson.

.....

Students ranked their top three favorite subjects as: 1. Math 2. English 3. History.

.....

Choosing the best concert of all time, students elected these four: 1. George Strait 2. Motley Crue 3. M.C.Hammer 4. New Kids On The Block.

.....

85% of the students surveyed think that Georgetown is boring, but only 57% would move if they had the chance.

.....

80% of the students questioned said they would admit being from Georgetown if asked.

55% said they had never gotten into a nightclub illegally.

.....

Although 60% of the students surveyed said they had never cheated on their boyfriend or girlfriend, 33% admitted that they would consider it.

.....

78% of the students surveyed believed in the death penalty.

.....

72% of the students questioned believed that abortion should be legal.

.....

93% of the students questioned admitted to having lied to their parents about where they were going.

61% of the students do not watch PBS.

87% of the students questioned believed that Elvis is dead.

.....

9% of those who believe that Elvis is alive say they have seen him.

.....

76% of the students said they sing in their cars when they are alone.

.....

55% of the students questioned indicated that they do not undress in front of their pets.

.....

33% of the students said they have stolen something during their lifetimes.

.....

20% of those surveyed said they have never been in Georgetown's Public Library.

.....

92% of the students plan to have children someday.

27% of the students have been on a blind date.

.....

75% of the students confessed to spending an entire weekend at home.

.....

25% of the students said they do not wake up before 10 a.m. on Saturdays.

.....

89% of the students have watched The Love Boat at some time in their lives.

.....

Out of the 11% who have not seen The Love Boat, 37% said they would not admit if they had.

.....

81% of the students have voluntarily gone places with their parents.

.....

63% of the students questioned do not believe there is a 6th dimension.

.....

84% of the students surveyed admitted that they had pet a stray dog.

WHAT A SWEETHEART

Only three senior girls could receive a nomination for the honor.

The varsity football team selected three girls as nominees for football sweetheart. The girls' hard work, spirit, dedication, and support of the team made them candidates for the traditional football season honor.

Michelle Hodge, Julie Crawford, and Heather Keeling, all members of the varsity cheerleading squad, received the nominations. The girls were presented to the team at the Beach Bum pep rally on September 22. That night at the football game against Westlake, Julie Crawford was announced as the 1990 Football Sweetheart.

PIZZA POWER

Perhaps the state legislature should have looked to the GHS history department for ideas on how to keep students interested in school. By offering pizza as the prize, history teachers John Thomas, LaTrelle Voss, and Diane Smith rounded up nine teams of three people each to participate in the Foundation for Scholastic Advancement History Contest.

"I think it is fun," Ms. Voss said. "They'll even do history for junk food."

The contest consisted of ten rounds with ten multiple choice questions in each round. Each of the first nine rounds lasted for three minutes while the tenth round lasted five minutes. All of the questions pertained to American and world history.

"We thought we'd be the only team to sign up," junior Shane Boff said. "It's kind of a nerdy thing."

The winning team, named "That Oozy Stuff," consisted of seniors Craig Cuff, Coy Henderson, and Neil Messing. The team received $20 to purchase the pizza.

"At the very beginning I didn't feel too confident," senior Coy Henderson said. "We ran out of time and had to guess at so many of them. It turns out we are good guessers." by Amanda Braun

What do you think the most significant world event has been in the last year? Why?

"The Berlin Wall- not only because it freed Germany, but because it was the beginning of the spread of democracy in Eastern Europe. It started it all."

-Senior Brenda Kleen

"The Berlin Wall because no one ever imagined it would come down. It was like, if the Wall could come down, anything could happen."

-Senior Kristen Cox

"The death of the Ayatollah Khomeini because he was such a powerful leader and it affected political relations with all the countries of the world."

-Senior Neil Messing

SENIOR SURVEYS?

What if Dan Quayle, Manuel Noriega, and Mikhail Gorbachev had gone to GHS? The world may never know, but here's what their senior surveys might have looked like...

DANFORTH "Danny Boy" QUAYLE

MEMORIES: My trip to Panama, Vietnam, the day George let me play in his office. FRIENDS: Noriega, Mr. Rogers, all the little people. AMBITION: To become vice-president.

MANUEL "Manny" NORIEGA

MEMORIES: My stay at the Vatican embassy, complete power over an entire country. FRIENDS: Ronnie Reagan, Fidel Castro, every American who ever bought drugs. AMBITION: To stay out of prison.

MIKHAIL "Gorby" GORBACHEV

MEMORIES: Witnessing the fall of the Berlin Wall, listening to Stalin roll in his grave. FRIENDS: anyone who voted for me. AMBITION: to visit Disneyworld.

Life in the Fast Lane

Lady Eagle softball finishes on top

Beating any team by ten points would be something to brag about. The Lady Eagles fast pitch softball team beat not only one opponent by ten points, but two.

The team won against Reagan 15-5 and McCallum 14-4 to add to the overall season record of 4-3-1.

The team's overall batting average totaled .470 while total RBI's was 40 for the season.

Home run hitters for the team were Carly Curtis, Tina Miller, and Mona Parker. Jodee Wilson led the team with two triples, and Parker finished the season with four doubles.

Jodee Wilson, Doreen Maughan, and Carly Curtis were pitchers for the team. Maughan finished the season with the highest strike percentage of .515.

TIMID CREATURES

MAKE HIGH SCHOOL DEBUT

Easily recognized on the first day of school, these timid creatures scurry through the halls, continually bumping into upper classmen asking for directions. Could there be no mistake concerning identity? Of course not.

"On the first day of school I was surprised to see them (Freshman) strutting around everywhere like they owned the place," sophomore Brandon Currey said. "The problem was they were bigger than me."

The ninth graders were often the victims of abuse.

"I like to tease them," senior Deborah Bloom said. "I like to do things to them that everyone always warned me would happen to me as a freshman."

Although most people expressed a fondness for the freshmen, others simply refrained from contact with them.

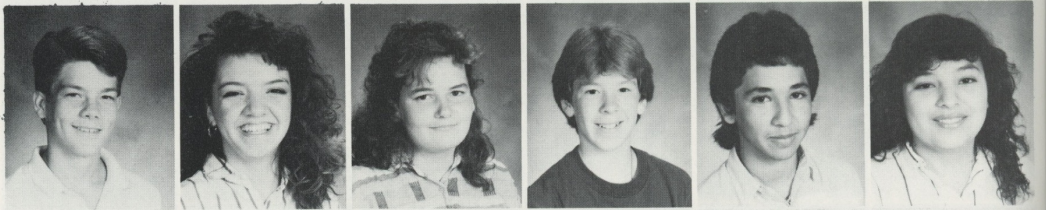

"I try to avoid them at all cost," senior Casey Conner said

"And I've succeeded because I don't know any."

Freshman themselves disliked the aspects associated with the first year in high school.

"There are those freshmen who think it's 'neat' to be in high school," freshman Khriisslyn Goodman said. "They try to let everyone know that they are freshman. They dress weird and ride the bus as much as possible." by Julie Pastor

Freshmen Foresee Future Food Freedoms

Every lunch hour hundreds of students munch the school cafeteria's wide varieties of food. Sharon Castleberry, the lady behind the hundreds of meals that are consumed daily, said that over 500 students a day eat in the cafeteria. That is 300 students eating the meal of the day and 200 students who pick and choose at the snack bar.

Freshman Chuck Anderson had no complaints. "The food is OK most of the time."

There was some argument as to which meal is the tastiest. Freshman Robert Burton voted for burritos. Castleberry reported the biggest sales on pizza days.

Chuck Anderson agreed with the pizza poll. Anderson had a minor complaint about the noise level in the cafeteria. "It is just too loud," he said. However, Burton liked the atmosphere. "It is a cultural experience," he said.

There was no argument on the value of the food for the dollar. Priced at only $1.25 for an entire meal, no student or worker could find complaint with the cost. "You definitely get what you pay for," freshman Rosetta Espy said.

"Most of the students who eat in the cafeteria are freshmen," Castleberry said. It was surprising to Castleberry and the other workers that the students who enjoy the food and its low price are so eager to eat out on the town. Not to worry, there will always be freshmen in the school and that means there will always be students staying in to enjoy the cafeteria's menu.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

There Is Future In It

Et tu Brutus? Sprechnin se Duetch? Parlez vous, Francais? Buenos diaz! From meeting college regulations to wanting to expand their language skills - students flocked to Foreign Language classrooms.

"I am taking a foreign language because you have to to get into most colleges," junior Wendy Martin said.

With approximately 350 students, Spanish was the most popular foreign language. German and French had about 60 students in each, and 34 students took Latin.

"I chose French because it is challenging," junior Christy Sobey said. "Plus I wanted to do something different from Spanish."

Communicating with other people in other languages is almost essential in today's world.

"We need to communicate with others with today's technology," Spanish teacher Yolanda Almaraz said. "Businessmen and world leaders need to communicate in other languages." by Vicki Myers

THE FRESHMEN ON STAFF

Added to the freshmen roll, two new assistant principals joined the staff. Jack Sharp traveled across town from the junior high and David O'Neill from halfway across the state, Fort Worth.

"I came to Georgetown because the school district has a good reputation,"

O'Neill said. "and is located in one of the prettiest and nicest places in Texas."

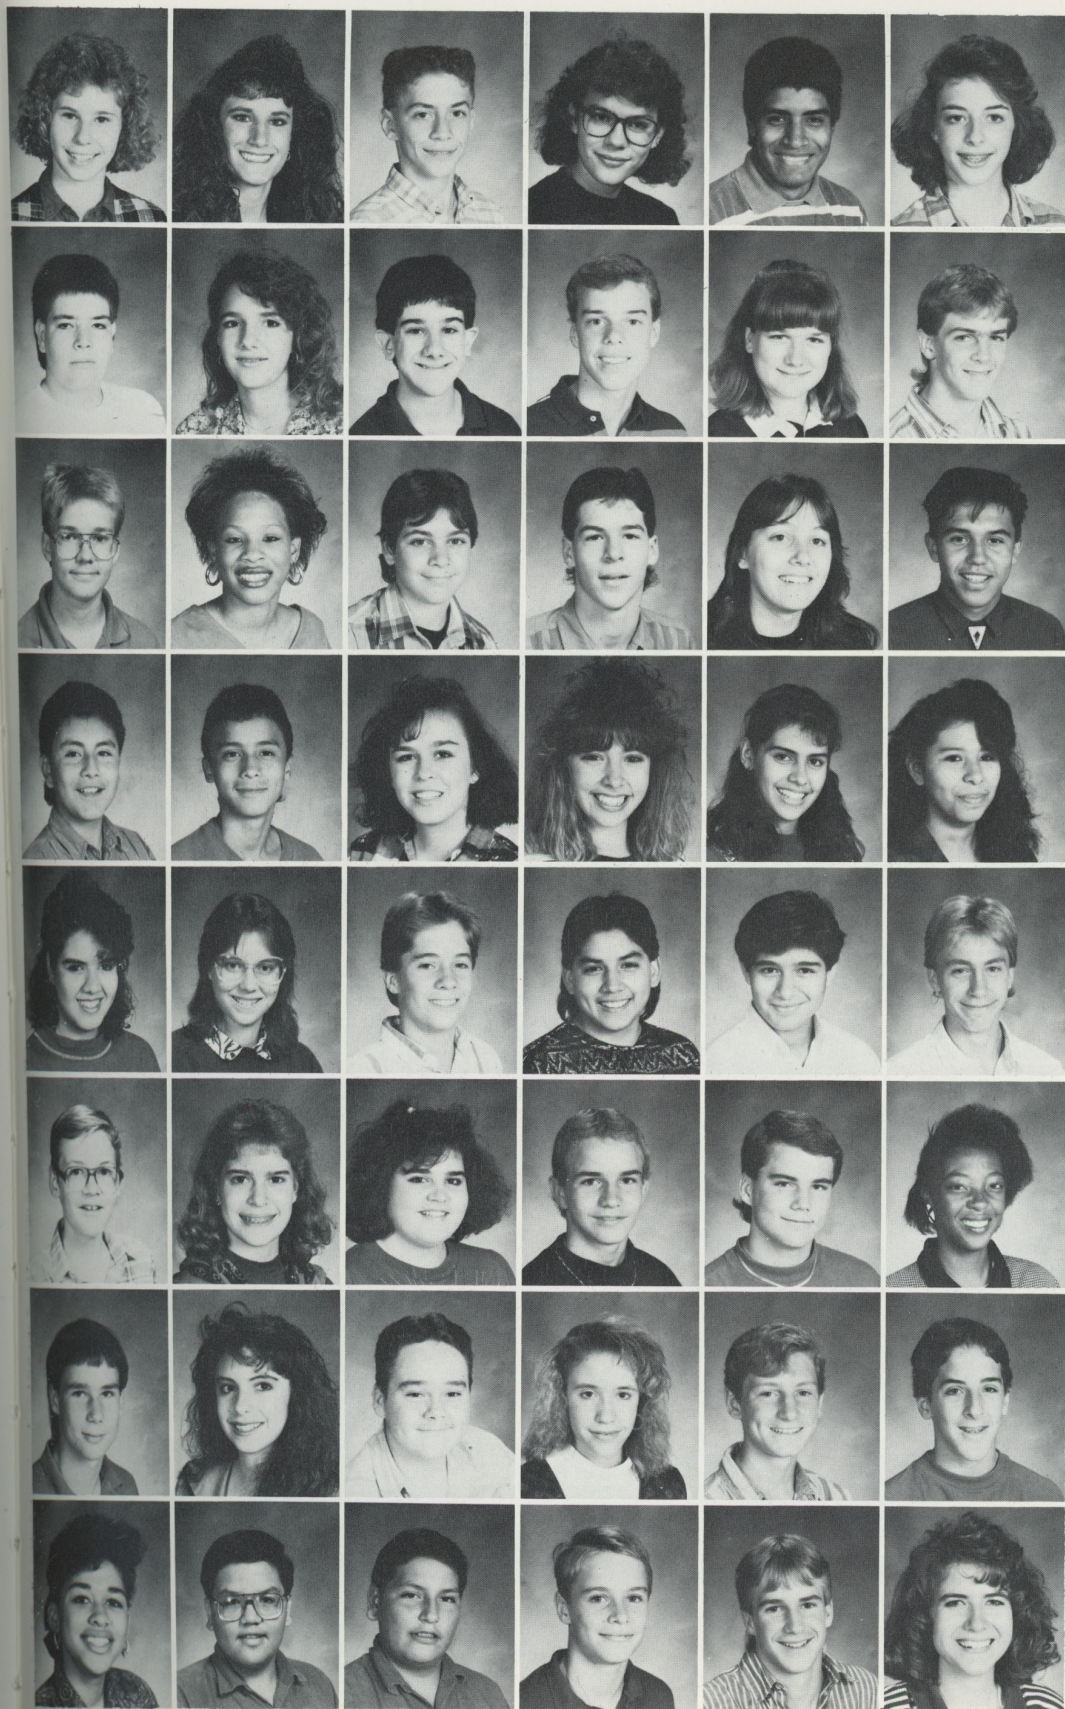

Prior to his service as assistant principal at the junior high, Sharp served time in the classroom.

"Besides being a principal, I taught math for fourteen years," Sharp, who is also junior/senior high summer school principal, said.

On the other hand, O'Neill never left the classroom.

"I still consider myself a teacher," O'Neill said. "Being a teacher is part of being a principal." by Vicki Myers

COMPUTER WHIZ: In this age of technology, almost everybody needs to know how to use a computer for job purposes. Computer Math teacher Don Haynes teaches English teachers Theresa Cavender, Linda Roy and Karol Chapman how to use new computers loaded by IBM.

Moonlighting for extra $'s

Twenty-five thousand dollars may seem like a large amount of money as a lump sum; however, distributed over a period of ten months, it is not much. Georgetown teachers -- those in financial need and/or with an excess of energy--pursued other jobs in addition to their teaching positions.

For example, in June of 1981, Computer Math teacher Don Haynes collaborated with an opportunist lawyer and a retiring real estate agent to form the CCX Consumers' Computer Exchange. Haynes went into business for both interest and financial reasons.

"I've got a lot of energy and ability for it," Haynes said. "Of course, I'm interested in computers."

Physics teacher Paul Hudspeth also participated in extracurricular "work." Hudspeth played bass guitar for three Austin bands of the rock-n-roll persuasion: XKE, The AlleyCats, and The Part-Time Band.

In addition to Haynes and Hudspeth, special education teacher Jarrod Heaney found something other than teaching to keep his life interesting. Heaney delivered pizzas for Mr. Gatti's on weekends. by Stacey Chambers

STUDY BUDDIES

Two attendance slips, two homerooms, and two teachers, but only one set of notes, one test, and one class. Confusing? Well, this situation does take a little explaining. History teachers John Thomas and LaTrelle Voss started the school year with two separate Honors United States History classes, but soon after the classes began, they decided to combine their classes into one.

"The actual combining of the classes came about early in the year during the review of the first half of American history," Voss said. "Tending to be a tad more conservative, I volunteered to talk about my man, Alexander Hamilton, and Mr. Thomas, the residing liberal, said he would be more than happy to espouse the virtues of Thomas Jefferson. From there the combination of the classes seemed to occur naturally."

For the teachers and students, the integrated class was a new experience with its advantages and disadvantages.

"I heard both points of view. I don't know if that made it easier, but I liked it better than having just one teacher," junior Kara Pennington said. "We had an overall view, but we spent so much time arguing that sometimes we didn't focus on the topics." by Autumn Sproles

BAND RATES SUPERIOR

Work and Dedication Bring Honors

Accumulating superior ratings, the band left 5A with a bang.

In its last year in 5A, band members, under the direction of Rodney Klett, Michael Schaff, Richard Sullivan, and David Brooks, collected trophies that testified to their many hours of practice, during, before, and after regular school hours.

"Holy Smoke!" assistant director Brooks said, the only response he could think of to sum up his feelings of the year.

Susan Mendal and Patricia Grimmar taught individual and group techniques, adding dimension to the students' performances.

"I think marching is more fun than concert season," freshman Rhonda Mitchell said.

Band members had varied opinions when it came to which performances they liked best, marching or concert.

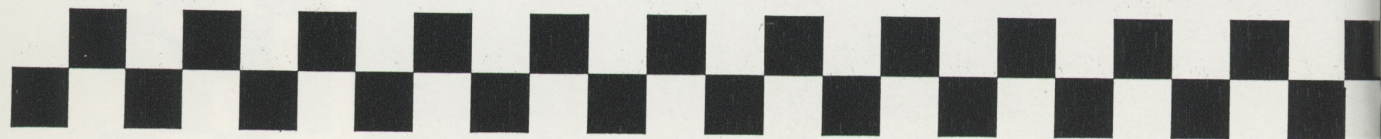

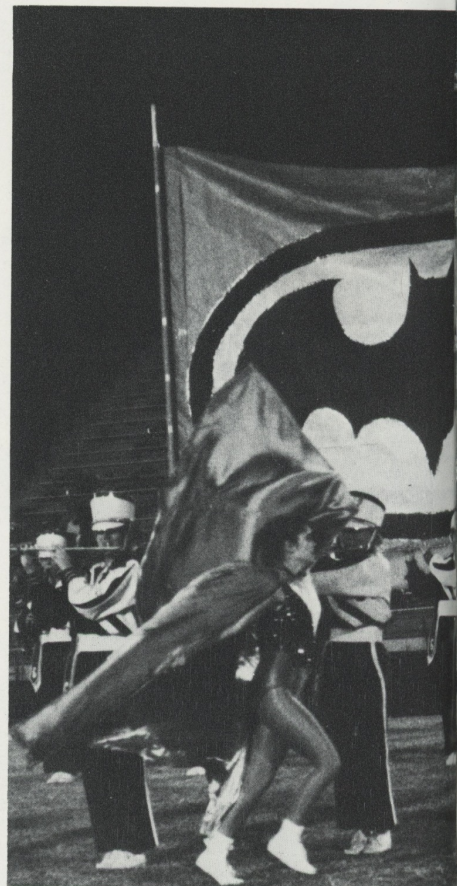

"I like concert season the best, even though we had to put a lot of hard hours into practice. It all was worth it because in the end we got superior ratings," freshman Heather Ross said.

The band received a first division ranking at marching contest, October 31.

For sight readings both bands, honors and symphonic, received superior ratings.

After being named "Best in Class" at the Big D Classic, a contest at Southern Methodist University, the band members spent some time at Six Flags in May.

"Most people don't know how hard band is," seniors Dea Briggs and Bryce Arnold said simultaneously. "They think that you just march a little show and blow air through a little horn. Actually, we work our butts off." by Lori Lumpkin and Courtney Evans

LIFTING SPIRITS

Leaders cheer teams to inspire victories

As summer, a time of rest and relaxation for students, began, newly elected cheerleaders started preparations for the upcoming year. They sold ads, painted signs, went to camps, and learned new cheers.

"It makes life hectic," junior cheerleader Chrissy Burgess said. "Cheerleading is all-year long, unlike most sports. You get a lot accomplished, and I think it is worth it."

When the summer ended, the work did not. Pep rallies, games, and contests had just begun.

"The hardest thing is all of the time spent on painting signs, practicing, the games themselves," senior cheerleader Kimberly Paggi said. "School work really suffers because time is crammed, but I guess that is why I like it."

This year marked the first time the cheerleaders cheered for all of the sports. They also attended two competitions. At the Regional Competition they received an Award of Excellence, and at the San Antonio State Competition they received fourth place in the 5A division.

"I love to cheer, and cheering at every sport makes it even better," senior cheerleader Jenny Snyder said. "I think it is really important to include all sports because they are all important."

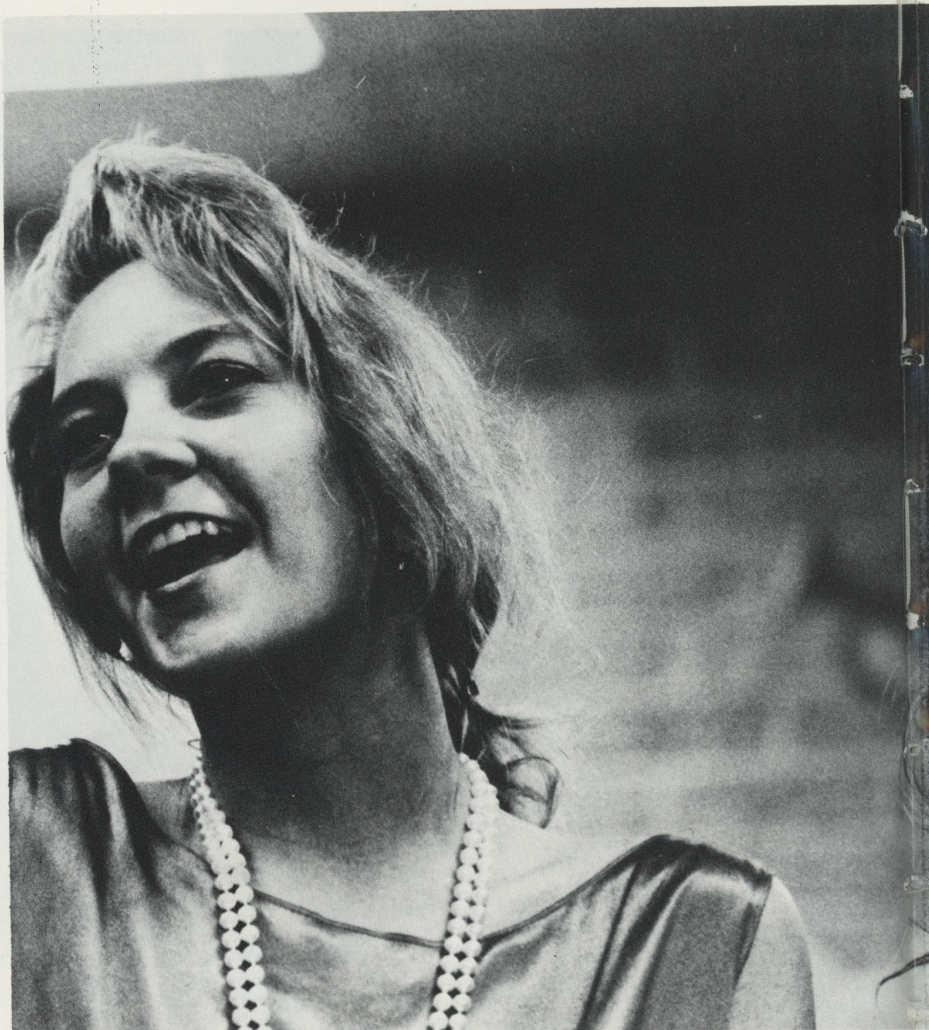

The cheerleaders, seen at almost all sporting events, showed their school spirit by cheering on the team.

"A cheerleader represents the school," Kimberly said. "And she should represent it well."

FULL OF PIZZAZZ

Choir entertains, inspires, thrills audiences

For members of the choir, the year was long. Back in August, before school started, the choir's year had already begun. Interested singers tried out for Jazz-N-Pizzazz, the show choir, and practiced daily after that.

After receiving an excellent rating for the Solo and Ensemble Contest in Pflugerville, both of the show choirs advanced to state competition in June.

For the Mexican Dinner Fall Concert, the Christmas Concert and the Spring Spaghetti Supper, the Show Choir, The Electric Blue Show Girls, and the Concert Choir combined their talents. Members sold tickets while volunteer mothers cooked the food.

Recruiting boys for the mixed show choir became a priority.

"A lot of guys think that choir is for wimps, but I think the guys in it have more guts just because they can handle the put-downs," senior Jon Leggitt said.

In addition to after-school rehearsals on Mondays, the Showgirls attended a Saturday clinic on choreography with Linda Anderson, a choir director from Chicago, Illinois.

"She was a very inspiring woman," senior Bekki Frazier said.

To raise money, the choir manned a concession stand at football games, washed cars, collected paper for recycling, and sponsored bake sales.

"I think the car washes are the funnest," freshman Tonya McGuyer said. "You can get tan, meet people, and you end up all wet."

Another fundraiser pitted the faculty against the KASE 101 disk jockeys. A 24-hour sports marathon and the annual talent show also increased the choir's bank account.

The money funded the choir's trip to Atlanta, Georgia, for choir competition at Six Flags Over Georgia in the spring.

KEEP ON DANCING

Georgettes follow rules and regulations, build lasting friendships

Lining up at pep rallies, forming spirit lines during varsity football games, practicing eighteen hours a week to learn and to perfect their dance routine, drill team members followed very strict rules in order to be able to dance. Demerits, absences, and weight contributed to these rules.

"The thing I would change about the Georgettes is the strictness of the demerit system," freshman Nicole Oliver said.

Georgettes received demerits for insubordination, failure to turn in items on time, and not wearing the specified uniform.

Another rule that was carefully monitored was the weight requirement.

"The dance team goes by the Apache Bell weight chart," junior Andrea Holliday said.

Each girl was put into categories according to her height and bone structure. Those who went over their weight limit could not dance until they lost the extra pounds.

In spite of, or because of the many requirements, Georgettes formed fast friendships.

"The most rewarding part about being a Georgette is all the friendships," sophomore Mary Wachsmann said.

LEADERS OF THE PACK

Council stays involved year-round -- and then some

For seven members of the Student Council preparations began in July. The group and sponsor Judy Millegan attended a summer workshop at Baylor University to gather new ideas and to plan for the year.

"It was very worthwhile and made me excited," senior Christie Kulp said. "I truly believed that I could make a difference."

In November sponsors Linda Roy, Holly Barrett, and Assistant Principal David O'Neill joined 18 members and trekked to the Y.O. Ranch for another leadership camp. The students faced challenges such as rappelling, climbing, and jumping from the top of a 25-foot pole to a trapeze eight feet away while building confidence amongst each other.

"I learned to trust that other people would be there for me to depend on if I messed up," junior Nicole Black said.

During football season the organization sold spirit ribbons, greeted the opposing team's school representatives, ran a concession stand at the games, sponsored the dances after the games, and played a role in the morning pep rallies.

Some of the council's additions to the morning assemblies included the "Kiss the Pig" contest, which originated from an idea at camp, and the raffle of a compact disc player as an incentive for perfect attendance.

In addition to planning Homecoming and the dance the following evening, members sold mums and sponsored a hall decorating contest to encourage spirit.

Powder Puff followed with the planning of the game and the Sadie Hawkins dance.

In February, the Student Council sponsored the Coronation ceremony and the Valentine's Dance with responsibilities divided among the members.

"I thought it was going to be really difficult to put it all together," senior Seneca Brashear said. "The anticipation was more exhausting than the actual work itself."

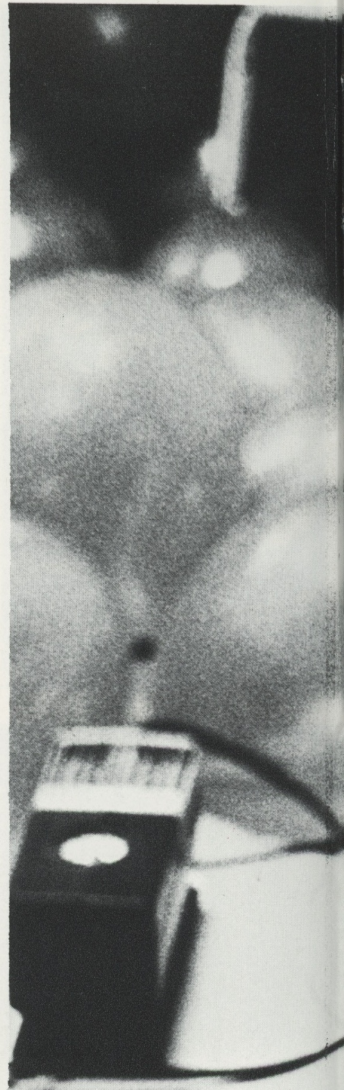

The Student Council also participated in Open House, the Curriculum Fair, and the elections of class officers, cheerleaders, and Student Council officers.

Members found the time and the money to decorate bulletin boards, keep the marquee up-to-date, hold a canned food drive for charity, observe Safety Week, present gifts to the school, and give scholarships to its graduating senior members.

FRANCS, MARKS AND PESOS

Language Clubs Concentrate on Fundraising to Finance Activities

Foreign Language clubs promoted special events as well as their specific languages. The clubs each had different fund raising projects to finance projects, trips, banquets, and/or scholarships to graduating seniors.

The Spanish club sponsored the Miss Ano Nuevo Pageant. This was the Spanish club's fund raiser for the banquet at J. C. Garcias and for scholarships to give to deserving seniors.

"It's a fun group to be in, and it's fun to help out with the Ano Nuevo Pageant," sophomore Leah Stanford said.

The French club made and sold eclairs to provide a scholarship for a senior member of the club. The French club had its end of the year banquet at the French restaurant Chez Nous.

The German club sold fortune eggs and chocolate Christmas candies to raise money for a trip to Six Flags. The German club members watched several German films throughout the year.

"I think the German club is really fun. We do a lot of really neat things," sophomore Heidi Zahasky said.

The Latin club sold candy grams at Christmas and had a bake sale at Spookfest to fund its end-of-the-year banquet at the Olive Garden. The club gave its $100 scholarship to Nick Johnson, senior member.

"Maxima est!" Mrs. Marietta Mugford, Latin club sponsor, said. Translated, this means "It's the greatest!"

CREATIVE ENERGY

Groups Put Blood, Sweat, and Tears Into Projects

Drama, speech, newspaper, yearbook, and literary publication members spent hours before, during, and after school to perfect their own creativity in their performances or publications.

The speech squad, whose members could be either in the class or in the club, competed in debate and in prose, poetic, dramatic, and humorous oral interpretation. The squad placed in 13 of the 14 tournaments competed in.

"I have been on the speech squad for four years now," senior Nick Johnson said. "But I never took a speech class."

Painted Faces, the drama club's official name, performed Don't Drink the Water, Chamber Music, and Table Settings. Under the direction of teacher

Missy Thibodeaux, the one act play, Chamber Music, won the zone competition.

"The club has had a remarkable turnout this year thanks to Ms. Thibodeaux," sophomore Jeremy Guyton said.

The Wings staff produced Reflexions, a compilation of stories, poems, essays, and artwork written and drawn by the staff and the student body.

The newspaper staff published six issues of The Talon including a special senior issue. The Talon received an award in the top category given by the Interscholastic League Press Conference (ILPC).

ILPC also awarded Distinguished Merit, its top award, to the 1989 Aerie, the school yearbook.

TRAVELIN' TEXAS

Academic Clubs Tour to Gain Knowledge and Have A Good Time

Travelling abroad.

Seeing the sights.

Broadening horizons.

The Math and Science club, TAME, and the Junior Historians all took trips around the state during the year.

The Math and Science club traveled to Texas A&M University for a football game during the fall and to Sea World in San Antonio in June.

A local science and math competition was held February 13. Seniors Zaneta Pavlica and Kammie Rodriguez advanced to the State competition held on April 7.

The Junior Historians went to the Renaissance festival in the fall to learn more about the culture and history of the medieval period.

"One of the shopkeepers that worked there licked Teresa Carlisle's face," senior Alfred Godwin said. "The jousting and a lot of the period costumes and shows truthfully portrayed the spirit of the Renaissance era."

TAME held car washes and bake sales in order to raise money for a trip to NASA. The group also entered a competition to build a replica of the Tom Mueller dam out of sand.

"We've all learned a lot about the many career opportunities available for engineers," TAME president Kammie Rodriguez said.

EXPLAIN IT TO ME: Senior Juile Pastor questions a TAME representative about one of their brochures. The Texas Alliance of Minority Engineers set up a table in the commons with pamphlets and other information about the organization.

GETTING A HEAD START

Future Farmers, Teachers, Business Leaders and Homemakers Experience the Real World

Getting a head start. That was what some students had in mind when they joined career related clubs.

Future Homemakers of America performed an award winning presentation of Dolls. The play discussed teenage sexuality and won first place in the 100% Nutra-Sweet Community Award competition.

The Business Professionals of America practiced in the business world and competed at Regional and State competitions.

The Future Business Leaders of America hosted the Area III Fall Leadership Conference. Members of FBLA competed in State and Regional contests. Junior Bradley Glenn served as Area III State Vice President. The chapter continued to fight against birth defects by helping to raise money for the March of Dimes.

Future Farmers of America members showed their livestock at a show in December. They also held a banquet in the spring to honor sponsors and students for their hard work during the year.

"Being in FFA during high school has been a great experience," Vice-President DeAnn Stork said.

Future Teachers of America gave students the chance to experience a classroom atmosphere for themselves by helping elementary teachers.

"It helped us understand how much work and effort it takes to be a teacher," senior Michelle Caskey said.

Distributive Education Clubs of America helped students perfect their marketing skills. Students learned basic skills in human relations, computer applications, and free enterprise. Members of DECA attended school for half a day, while working the other half.

INVOLVED CITIZENS SUPPORT COMMUNITY

POPS, GLAD, Jack Frost Citizens and Young Texans and Tex-Annes Show Spirit

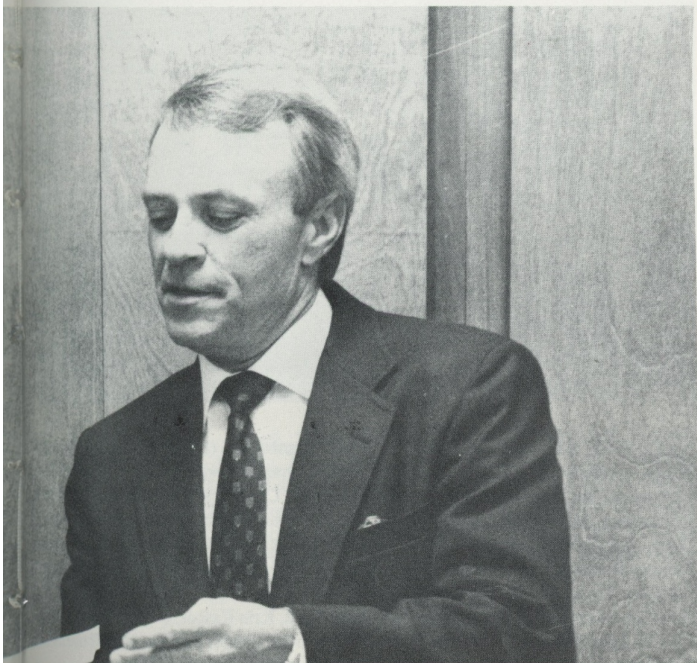

POPS, the Power of Positive Students, became a growing force among United States high schools. The local chapter began in the spring of last year. Science teacher Betty Whiteaker organized the first meeting by sending out letters to prospective members. The club gained even more strength this year. A visit from its initiator, Billy Mitchell, at the POPPS rally topped off the year.

SADD became GLAD, Georgetown Leaders Against Drugs. The club publicized the Texas Red Ribbon Campaign by passing out red ribbons to increase awareness throughout the school. At the end of the week, members marched in a parade to the Capitol.

Each month two seniors were named Jack Frost Citizens of the Month. The male and female winners, chosen from a committee of four students and one teacher, attended an honorary luncheon, received a $50 savings bond, and were recognized at the monthly school board meeting.

LEARNING...FOR LIFE

Scholastic Organizations Go Beyond The Classroom

UIL participants, NHS members, and Rotary Scholars used their minds to get ahead.

The National Honor Society was a service-oriented student organization. From wrapping presents for Project Share to cleaning up highways, the NHS was an asset to the community in many ways.

"I collect trash on the highways in order to beautify Texas," senior Julie Pastor said. "I collect and wrap gifts for kids that otherwise wouldn't have a Santa Claus."

To become a member of NHS, a student must have a 91 average and have been involved in the community.

The local Rotary Club honored the Rotary Scholars for having a 93 or above average throughout high school. These students were given a luncheon and presented with a Rotary Scholar jacket by the Rotarians.

"I consider it a great achievement to have earned the position of Rotary Scholar," senior Chad Young said.

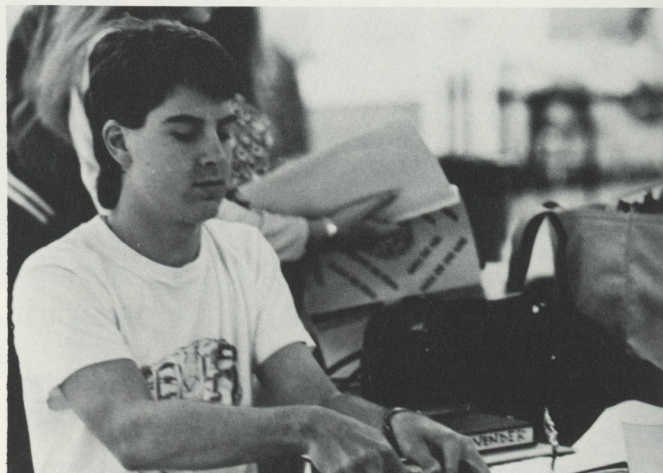

UIL Literary competed in many different divisions in the spring. Two practice meets were held in January and February, and district competition was held in March. Regional competition was slated for April, and State was held in May.

"Participating in UIL gave me a good return on my time. I gave a lot of my time, and UIL Debating taught me a lot about thinking logically and presenting a good case for what I believe in," senior Marc Robinson said.

Students were lucky in that the local businesses provided support in many ways. By giving experience in the working world, sponsoring school activities, donating supplies and prizes, and purchasing advertisements in the Aerie, these merchants helped to complete the education of many people.

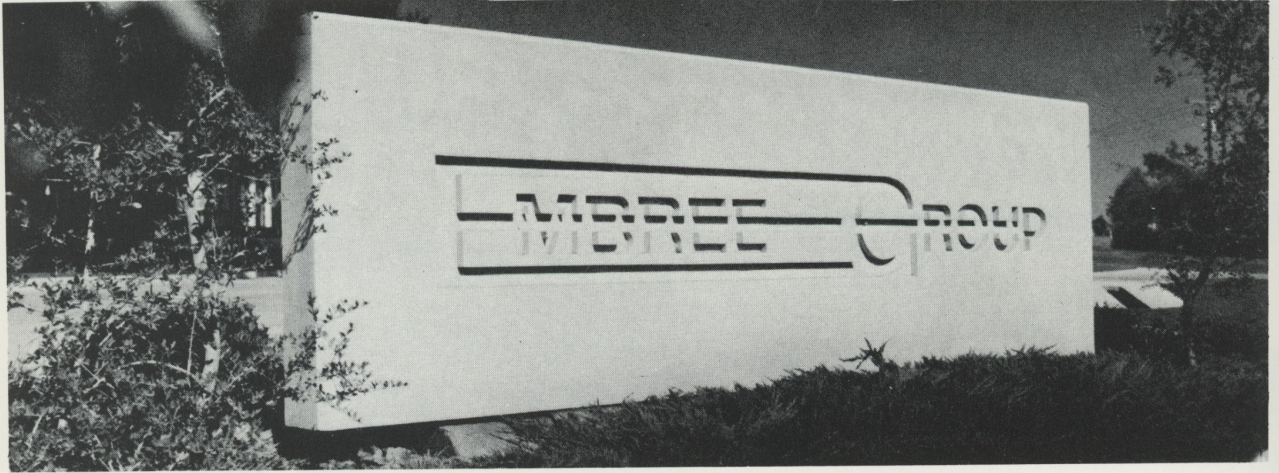

The publication of this yearbook was also supplemented by the support of students, families, and friends. Through the purchase of senior surveys and senior ads these people helped to fulfill the financial responsibilities of producing the Aerie.

The Aerie staff gives its thanks to all of those people who gave time and support to make this book a reality.

I MADE IT! Graduate Todd Carlson waves to family and friends upon receiving his diploma while seniors Christie Botello, Matt Eidson, Nicol Bouchard, and Holly Etheredge look on.

Memories. They were all we had left after a year full of trials, tribulations, obstacles, and victories. The boys' soccer and basketball teams went to the play-offs, while the seniors fought to keep their graduation in its traditional place. Every new day brought a new battle -- sometimes won, sometimes lost.

We learned from our experiences and anticipated the future, hoping for the best. No one could have predicted, as the year began, that there would be enough for all of us, and then some.

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

As the year ended, all we had left were the memories.

COLOPHON

The Newsfoto Publishing Company, 2027 Industrial Boulevard, San Angelo, Texas, 76902, printed the 44th volume of the AERIE yearbook. The staff would like to thank Gordon McCullough and Don Overall for all their help as company representatives.

Staff photographers and photojournalism students took all of the black and white pictures and printed them in the AERIE darkroom. Staff photographers also took the color pictures.

Mint Green and Brilliant Yellow colored the cover. Mint Green also highlighted the endsheets and opening section.

The book sold for $25 and $30 and contained 208 pages printed on enamel paper. Ten and 12 point Times dominated the body copy and headline type.

Staff members completed the total page paste-up, with the help of the Pagemaker program and MacIntosh laser printer, excluding photos printed to size.

Staff members designed all the layouts and graphics for each section. Amanda Braun, Jeff Walters, and Stacey Sowers developed the "It's Enough for All of Us" theme and graphics.

Special thanks go to the photojournalism students for help with the copy and photos and to George Gideon and Associates of Delmar Studios for taking the class pictures. The staff would also like to thank Gordon Baker of Gordon Baker Signs for helping with the cover design.
